M'Farland Ends Silence; Admits Hand In Robbery

Police Declare Him Master Mind In Safeblowing At Dale P. O.

RECOVER $70 ADDITIONAL Study Of Trio's Movements Shows They Operated From Twin Cities

John McFarland, the man of many aliases, who was implicated Saturday by his two pals, Phillip Albright and John Albright, brother-in-law of McFarland, in robbery of the Dale post office last week, uttered a confession Monday afternoon after another grilling at the hands of Chief George T. Prim and J. A. Niles, postal inspector.

Another part of the loot consisting of $70 also was recovered. It was found hidden under leaves near a woodpile at the rear of the yard of the John Albright home, 1337 Pine-st. There were two $10 bills, five $5 bills, one $2 bill and eighteen $1 bills. Five dollars in pennies also was found in the house. The bills were badly tattered at the ends as a result of the dynamite explosion.

WAS LEADER McFarland, it has developed, was the master mind of the gang and directed the movements of his companions. He has been operating out of Chicago and Minneapolis, police say. He has admitted that he was with the Albright boys from the beginning of the operations leading to the postoffice robbery. The two pals, he said, belonged to him.

Mrs. McFarland was admitted to see her husband in the city jail Monday evening, and there was told to go to Chicago to tell his friends that he had "slipped up on a little job" and is "in need of help." He is very much humiliated over the fact that he was caught by "hicktown coppers," as he put it.

The Albright boys have only minor police records. Phillip has been arrested several times for drunkenness, and John was fined $25 last spring for stealing cream at Appleton Junction.

ABOUT TO FLEE McFarland and John Albright, it was learned by the police, had to leave the city late Saturday night after they had been informed that Phillip was in jail. The police intercepted their flight by about two hours. Milwaukee road and North-western time tables were found lying open on the table and some of the pages bore a few figures indicating that the men were computing the fare.

McFarland came to Appleton with his wife from Milwaukee in July. Police in checking up on his previous movements, ascertained that within 72 days he made deposits of more than $2,000 in a Minneapolis bank. This was between March 27 and April 23. The first deposit consisted of $1,000, the others being of $100, $200 and $300 denominations. McFarland made the deposits in the name of Edward Kane. Another alias he has used is John Moran.

JOINED Y. M. C. A. While in the Twin Cities he had purchased a membership in the Y. M. C. A. This, he said, was for the sake of the athletics. Police, however, declare it was to assume an air of respectability.

The alleged trio of robbers still is held in custody in Appleton. McFarland in the city jail, and the two Albright brothers in the county jail. Inspector Niles is expected to return from Green Bay Tuesday with warrants for their arrest, after which the men will be taken by United States marshals to Milwaukee to be arraigned in federal court.

Authorities are hoping to connect incriminating evidence relative to the Onida bank robbery with the movements of the alleged bandits. It now has developed that the tread of the automobile tires used by the bandits at Onida was the same as that of the McFarland Buick car that he sold a few days later after a trip to Dubuque, Ia. It also is said that bandits who robbed the Bear Creek bank used a Buick car.

Bad News For Coal Men

Birchwood, Wis. — That the approaching winter will be short and mild is indicated by the number of birds that are still in this region. Robins have been seen here, dandelions are in bloom, strawberry-blossoms have been seen and new leaf buds are again forming upon the trees. Muskrats are not preparing homes for the winter, which would indicate that the winter will be mild.

NEWBERRY ACT SAVES NATION MUCH TROUBLE

Exit Eliminates Congressional Fight—Chance For Extra Legislation

BY DAVID LAWRENCE Copyright 1922 by the Post Pub. Co. Washington — Truman H. Newberry's exit from the United States senate removes what might otherwise have been an embarrassing controversy for the administration of President Harding and something which might have had serious effects on the country as a whole through the inevitable delay in important legislation that would have resulted.

Although there were without question enough votes to oust Mr. Newberry from the senate in the session which would have brought into office the congress elected on Nov. 7, the insurgents in the senate had mustered enough strength to bring the matter to a head once more in the session to be begun in December. It would have been a close vote in the December session and a long drawn out party fight and Mr. Newberry has relieved his party and the administration of one of the most perplexing burdens it has carried in years.

LIKED BY COLLEAGUES For first of all Truman Newberry was liked by his colleagues. He wasn't pictured as the symbol of corruption in politics but as the victim of over-zealous friends with pockets bulging to beat Henry Ford whose war-time views irritated and exasperated them. Mr. Newberry would have resigned his seat immediately after his last election if it had not been the advice of his party associates to stick to his guns.

When the Newberry case was made an issue in the last campaign in Michigan, Mr. Newberry made up his mind to resign his seat immediately after the elections. His idea then was to wait until Senator Townsend was elected as any resignation before the election might hurt his colleagues' chances. Now, however, Mr. Townsend has been beaten and largely on the Newberry issue. He might have had some chance if Mr. Newberry had retired earlier but the "ifs" of the case are not material now.

DEMOCRATS PLEASED The Democrats are naturally pleased that the fight which they in company with a group of Republican congressmen waged in the senate has been successful but even the resignation of Mr. Newberry will not make the Democrats forget that it was with Mr. Newberry's vote that the Republicans had a majority of one in the United States senate in the spring of 1919 and that by that vote the Republicans were able to organize the senate and put a majority of their own number on all the important committees. Had Mr. Newberry been ousted or resigned three years ago the Democrats would have been able to name the committee chairman. Mr. Lodge would not have been at the head of senate foreign relations committee and the Versailles treaty with the League of Nations covenant in it might have received more friendly treatment in the senate.

All that is history now, but the Democrats will naturally make the most of Senator Newberry's resignation and join Mr. La Follette and his colleagues in the radical group in the framing of legislation to prevent excessive expenditures.

Officials Open Doors Wide To German Farmer

By American Press New York—August Reuter, a farmer from Westphalia, Germany, his wife, Natalia, and a child ranging from Olga 25 down to three months old Lena, are enroute west Tuesday to settle down on a farm near Green Lake, Wis. Immigration authorities passed Reuter and his family with record swiftness Monday when they reached Ellis Island. "We are keen to turn over this good American soil and make two blades of grass grow where there was but one," he said. "We know how to farm. I can turn a furrow as well as the next man and the frau can milk a cow and do everything a woman is expected to do on a farm. I wouldn't think of taking such a flock of children to one of your American cities. A married daughter, Ida, and Clara, another daughter and Otto, a son are on the Wisconsin farm already."

Woman Wins Seat For Day In Senate

Eighty-Seven-Year-Old Georgia Representative Takes Oath Of Office And Establishes Precedent

By Associated Press Washington — Mrs. W. H. Felton, the "grand old lady of Georgia" won her fight Tuesday for a seat for a day as the first woman senator.

Without objection from any senator but after a long delay during which the status of her appointment to the senate was reviewed in the light of precedent, Mrs. Felton took the oath of office at the vice president's desk and wrote her name in the senate membership book.

Resignation from the senate of Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan, center of a bitter election contest for the past four years, became effective Tuesday when his letter or resignation was presented and read in the senate.

The administration merchant marine bill with amendment agreed to Monday by Republican members was formally reported out of the house merchant marine committee Tuesday without a record vote while President Harding was arranging to go to the capitol and address a joint session of congress in the interest of the legislation.

MISS SCHULTZ TO RESIGN AS NURSE

County Nurse Notifies Board Of Her Intention To Leave Early Next Year

Miss Bertha Schultz, county nurse, on Tuesday offered her resignation to the county board of supervisors, to become effective Jan. 21, 1923. The resignation was read to the board just before its adjournment and was placed on file without discussion.

Miss Schultz was the first county nurse in Outagamie co. She was appointed almost two years ago. She said she had no reason for resigning other than she wished to take a rest. Miss Schultz would not say whether she contemplated leaving Appleton.

There has been considerable discussion in the county board sessions over the cost of maintaining the county nurse and several members of the board would like to abolish the position but a state law compels them to employ a nurse. Miss Schultz denied that the discussion in the board meetings promoted her resignation.

WIFE'S LOVE GONE; SUES FOR $25,000

By American Press Kewanee, Wis. — Edmund Melera of Green Bay asks the sum of $25,000 from Frank Wessely, of West Kewanee for the latter's alleged alienation of his wife's affections. Melera has started divorce proceedings against his wife on account of the suit. The plaintiff charges that Wessely alienated Mrs. Melera's affections and that he coaxed her into his home in West Kewanee, where he harbored her for several years. The defendants have denied all charges.

This is a very recent picture taken of Mrs. W. H. W. F. George was elected senator at the regular Nov. 7 election and will fill Mrs. Felton's place later.

FURNACE FIRM LOSES $650 IN NIGHT ROBBERY

Police Believe Theft At Holland Furnace Company Is "Inside Job"

Only a day after a bandit gang was captured in Appleton, another robbery occurred in the Holland Furnace company store, 689 College-ave. In which $630.60 was taken from the drawer of a desk. The work was done Monday evening.

The robbery was reported to the police by L. O. Egeved, local representative of the company about 11:15 Monday evening. A window pane had been broken, appearing as if entrance had been made in this way. An attempt clearly had been made to force open the drawer with a chisel.

An investigation conducted by Chief George T. Prim leads him to believe that the robbery was an "inside job." The strange part of the performance was that the window pane had been cut from within, rather than from without, he said. He also is of the opinion that the drawer could not have been forced open by a chisel in the manner that the marks on the drawer indicate. It is possible that it was opened with a key, he said.

If the theft had been committed before 11:15, it probably follows that it took place between the hours of 10:15 and 11:15, the chief believes, for at shortly after 11 o'clock, Patrolman Samuel Ford had tried the rear door and found nothing out of the ordinary.

HUNT RICH RADICAL; OTHERS BEGIN TERMS

Chicago — William Bross Lloyd, wealthy radical, still was outside of prison Tuesday as 12 of his associates started on the second day of their prison sentences, six of them in Joliet prison and seven in the Cook-co. jail. Lloyd, according to his counsel, voluntarily will give himself up Thursday. However, the faith of his attorneys has not kept officials from scouring the country for him. But as yet no trace of his present whereabouts has been reported.

Without deviation from the usual custom, the six men sent to Joliet for a term of one to five years, were printed, measured, recorded and assigned to cells. No special favors were shown to those who were imprisoned in the county jail.

LABORITES OF ENGLAND NAME PARTY LEADER

MacDonald Replaces Clynes After Incident In Parliamentary Ceremony

BULLETIN London—James Ramsay MacDonald Tuesday was elected leader of the parliamentary labor party.

London — Parliamentary writers have already decided that the new house of commons will be livelier than its predecessors and that the position which will apparently be furnished by the Laborites, will be keener and more aggressive.

The prospect of increased keenness of debate, due to the importation of new and young blood, is welcomed in all parts of the house and the prediction of liveliness is based mainly on the accession of debating ability to the ranks of labor. The attitude of some of the Laborites, as well as several of their English comrades towards the old time formalities of the opening day, is suggestive of defiance and a desire to "smash," but the more radical among them will have at their sides a large number of old parliamentary hands of their own party who, although yielding to none in keen advocacy of the party's aims, appreciate that violent haste often defeats a purpose and are quietly content to acquiesce in parliamentary conventions. It was evidently with the intention of checking the demonstrations of some of his more militant followers that John R. Clynes, chairman of the party declared that the party believed in constitutional methods and would do its utmost to maintain the dignity of the house.

Whether Clynes will retain his post as party leader will be decided at a party meeting Tuesday. The Laborites however are regarded as having been established as the opposition by an incident in the house Monday when Clynes headed the procession alongside Premier Bonar Law. When the premier rose all the men stood. Clynes and H. H. Asquith were to gather opposite the premier, Clynes mostly hesitating until Mr. Asquith gently pushed him forward. "The labor leader then fell into line with Mr. Bonar Law."

ALLIES UNITE AT LAUSANNE PARLEY

Unity Is Proclaimed By Delegates—Hold Private Conference Tuesday

By Associated Press Lausanne—Delegates to the Lausanne conference with the preliminary oratory concerning the close relations of Great Britain, France and Italy behind them, faced Tuesday the real test of the strength of the ties which spokesmen for the three powers have insisted existed among them.

The conference meets in private session Tuesday for purposes of organization and to start the actual work of making peace with the Turks. For centuries Turkey has been able to protect herself by getting European nations to quarrel among themselves over the Near Eastern question. The rivalry of France, Italy and Great Britain for supremacy in the Levant has been the protection of weak sultans in the past and it remains to be seen whether it will also be of service to Mustapha Kemal Pasha and his Angora associates.

Ismet Pasha and his associates of the Turkish delegation to the conference appear less confident than when they arrived and the feeling is growing that they will reduce their program materially in the hope of restoring peace and reestablishing trade relations with the outside world.

President Talks To Congress On Subsidy Measure

UNITED STATES SUFFERING STAGGERING LOSSES FROM PRESENT SYSTEM, HE SAYS

"WORLD OPPOSING PLAN" Geographical Or Partisan Objection Should Not Stand In Way, Is Plea

By American Press Washington—Enactment of the administration merchant marine bill was urged upon congress Tuesday by president Harding as necessary to relieve the government of present "staggering losses" in operation of the war built merchant fleet, and to establish a program of assured shipping to serve the nation in war and give it guarantee of commercial independence in time of peace.

Personally addressing a joint session of the house and senate the executive declared an actual monetary saving to the government would result from the proposed law. He challenged every insinuation of favored interests and the enriching of the special few at the expense of the public treasury. The legislation, he asserted, automatically guarded against enrichment or perpetration of favoritism.

"If success attend, as we hope it will," he added, "the government outlay is returned, the insurance of opportunity to earn, remains, and American transportation by sea is main tained."

The president said concern about the American merchant marine policy was not limited "to our own domain," adding that the maritime nations of the world, "were in complete accord with the opposition here to the pending measure." He declared those nations had a perfect right to such an attitude but that he wished to stress the American viewpoint which he said should be the viewpoint "from which one sees American carriers at sea, dependence of American commerce and American vessels for American reliance in the event of war."

Mr. Harding declared it would be most discouraging if a measure of "such transcending national importance" must have its fate depend on geographical, occupational, professional or partisan prejudice. A congressional influence on the seas and ample agencies for the promotion in carrying of American commerce, he asserted, were of no less importance to the people of the Mississippi and the Missouri valley, the great northwest and the Rocky Mountain states, than to the seaboard states and industrial communities inland.

"COMMON CAUSE"

"It is a common cause with its benefits commonly shared," said he. "If government aid is a fair term to apply to authorizations aggregating $75,000,000 to promote good roads for market highways, the president said, it is equally fit to be applied to the establishment and maintenance of American market highways on the "saturated seas."

As to present government operation of the shipping board fleet, Mr. Harding said there was the unavoidable task of wiping out a $50,000,000 annual loss and losses aggregating "many hundreds of millions" in worn out, sacrificed or scrapped shipping. He called attention to the fact that the government ships were being worn out without any provisions for replacement and that a program of surrender and sacrifice and the liquidation which he declared would be inevitable unless the proposed legislation were enacted would cost scores of millions. The cost of the proposed legislation giving direct aid, he said, with ocean carrying maintained at the present average would not reach $20,000,000 a year and the maximum direct aid if American shipping were so promoted that it carried one half the nation's deep sea commerce would exceed $30,000,000 annually.

TELLS OF LOSSES

The war construction and the later completion of war contracts, where completion was believed to be the greater economy to the public treasury, left us approximately 13,200,000 gross tons of ships. The figures are nearer 12,500,000 tons now owing to the scrapping of the wooden fleet. More than half this tonnage is government owned and approximately 2,250,000 tons are under government operation in one form or another. The net loss to the United States treasury, sums actually taken there from in this government operation, averaged approximately $16,000,000 a month during the year prior to the assumption of responsibility by the present administration. A constant warfare on this loss of public funds and the draft to service of capable business management and experienced operating directors, have resulted in applied efficiency and enforced economies. It is very gratifying to report the diminution of a total of $50,000,000 a year; but it is intolerable that the government should continue a policy from which

TOUGH KID
At 1 P. M. Saturday afternoon at College Ave. in front of the Campus facing the main hall, a child was run over by Dr. Bolton's sedan. The college band was preparing for a parade and the child was standing along the side of the band holding Lawrence signs. As the car came by he stepped directly in its path. He was knocked under the car, both the front and back wheels running over him. The child at once stood up and began crying saying he wanted to be taken home. He was taken to a doctor.

ON THE SCREEN

Florence Vidor in 'Skin Deep'
"All is not what it seems with the actress when she is playing her part before the camera," remarked Florence Vidor who plays one of the leads in Thomas Ince's latest special production, 'Skin Deep'.

This fact was impressed upon me with a new vigor when I played the part of the nurse in 'Skin Deep'. My patient is a convict who had fallen from an airplane during a thrilling escape from prison and was left by his accomplices as dead until the doctor happened along and picked him up.

"I knew that the doctor planned to bring about a regeneration of this crook by rebuilding his features through plastic surgery and by showing him a side of life that had for its keynote kindness, sympathy and confidence. I knew that it was up to me as his nurse meeting with him daily to arouse this new thought in his mind. I knew that my impression upon him might mean the difference between his going back to the old life of crime and starting out on a new life with a clean slate."

"You can imagine then, what an inspiration it was for me to put my whole heart into the role. I forgot that I was Florence Vidor and that my patient was Milton Sills. I was so wrapped up in the part that I remember a real feeling of disappointment and alarm when I return to the room one morning to find that my patient has taken 'French leave'. I was able to do this simply because I believe that 'Skin Deep' is one of the most fascinating and powerful human-interest stories ever told on the screen."

Which way did the escaped convict go? Back to the old life of crime—back to carry out the mission of murder for which he escaped from prison—or did he take the new roads his inspiring friends had pointed out to him? You will be able to follow him on the amazing path he did take if you will see him at the Elite theater to day.

MAYBE THEY WERE FRENCHMEN
Saturday evening, while sitting in a car which was parked near the corner of Durkeest and College Ave., I witnessed this affectionate parting. Two men shook hands, said goodby and started in opposite directions. They only went a little way, when they both turned and retraced their steps, shook hands again and gave each other an affectionate kiss, and then separated for keeps.

FLIRTING WITH DEATH
Saturday morning near noon I saw a big sedan escape destruction by a few feet when it dashed across the railroad crossing on the south road to Kaukauna ahead of a passenger train. There were five persons in the car. Either the driver had failed to heed the warning signs or had failed to heed the warning signs or hear the whistle. It was a mighty narrow escape for him.

CHARGE U. S. BANK WITH PERSECUTION

Appleton Men Interested in Oregon Bank Which Starts Unique Suit

A number of Appleton men are interested in the Brookings State bank of Brookings, Ore., which has instituted suit for $130,000 against the Federal Reserve bank of San Francisco. The bank was founded by George D. Wood, former Appleton resident and a brother of James A. Wood, 660 Washington st. Other Appleton men who are interested in the bank are C. S. Dickinson and George Baldwin. The Chicago Tribune of Monday, Nov. 20, printed the following item concerning the bank's suit:
"Portland, Ore.—Suit for $30,000 actual damages and $100,000 exemplary damages was filed in Federal court here Saturday by the Brookings State bank against the Federal Reserve bank of San Francisco. The Brookings bank alleged the Federal Reserve bank instituted a campaign of 'persecution' against it to compel it to clear Federal Reserve checks at par instead of making the usual exchange charge of one-tenth of 1 per cent."

"The suit is an outgrowth of an injunction suit filed last year against the Federal Reserve bank to stop its alleged operations against the Brookings bank."
"When the Brookings bank refused to clear reserve paper at par it is alleged in the complaint that the San Francisco bank adopted a policy of gathering together checks on the Brookings bank and mailing them to an agent in Brookings, who would present them at one time and demand cash payment over the counter, refusing drafts upon the Brookings bank." DEER HUNTING IN NORTH IS FAR FROM EXCELLENT

G. L. Chamberlain, secretary of Outgame Fish and Game Protective association has returned empty handed from the north woods after a deer hunting expedition. Mr. Chamberlain, however, was not alone in returning without a deer. There were four men in his party and they only got two shots in the week they were north. Near their camp near Long lake were two other camps containing 10 hunters and only three bucks were bagged by them. They saw many does and fawns but mighty few bucks. Warm weather and lack of snow is largely responsible for the inability to get the deer, Mr. Chamberlain said.

SHE LOST HER HUSBY
Saturday evening about 7:30 I saw what appeared to be a young married couple looking in the show window of the Langstadt-Meyer Co. Suddenly the young man started to walk away unobserved by the young lady. When the lady realized the absence of her hubby, she became excited and began to run, grabbing a man by the sleeve. The man tried to jerk away and to the lady's surprise she learned it was a stranger.
She was very much embarrassed but after a few seconds recovered her lost hubby.

DISREGARD FOR LAW
Saturday night while walking on College Ave. between Lawe and Onondaga, I counted seven cars without tail lights, four with one headlight, two with four lights, many with lights so strong as to blind one, one, a Ford truck with muffler cut out open from Drew on over Lawe to John and across the bridge. Are not all of these against the state law?

MAKE PREPARATIONS TO BUILD MUD CREEK BRIDGE

Construction work has been commenced on a spur track at Mud Creek bridge which is to be used for unloading material for the new permanent structure which is to replace the present temporary one. Local section foremen and their crews are assisting in the work. The new bridge is to be about 50 feet south of the one carried out by the flood last June in order to avoid the sharp curve in the channel. The workmen's quarters at Mud Creek resemble a little village. Men who are employed at building the new bridge are lodged in improvised barracks and take their meals in a shanty.

FARMERS WANT THEIR ROADS ON PATROL SYSTEM

100 Taxpayers Ask For Work On School Section-rd—Need Highway Map

A petition signed by more than 100 taxpayers of the town of Grand Chute and Center requesting the establishment of a patrol highway to be known as the school section highway was presented to the county board Monday afternoon and was referred to the county-state road and bridge committee.

It commenced at the corner sections 32 and 33 of the town of Black Creek and sections 4 and 5 of the town of Center running thence south a distance of approximately 12 miles to the intersection of Appleton-Hortonville rd.

A petition was presented praying that when the board makes proper connections of patrol sections 10 and 12 it annex and make a part of the present patrol system the stretch of highway commencing at the intersection of county trunk line B in section 26 and 27 in the town of Ellington running thence north on the section line between 26 and 17, 22 and 23, and 14 and 15 to a point where it intersects patrol section 27.

In making this annexation, it was pointed out by Supervisor Werner, it would not add any additional expense of maintenance as it can readily be taken care of by the patrolmen of either sections 27 or 10. The petition was referred to the county-state road and bridge committee.

Not being familiar with the description of the highways described in the two petitions Supervisor Jensen of Little Chute repeated a suggestion he made at a previous session of the board that the county procure a large map for the purpose of locating proposed additions to the county patrol system.

In order to facilitate matters and relieve somewhat work of the county-state road and bridge committee it was suggested that a special committee be appointed to take charge of the highway petitions as they come in and to inspect and report their findings to the board. Supervisor Fiedler, chairman of the county-state road and bridge committee said all petitions regarding to roads should be presented 30 days before the supervisors meet so as to give his committee an opportunity to go over them. Upon motion of Supervisor P. H. Ryan the chairman was authorized to appoint a special committee of four members which the chairman said he would announce Monday.

Louis A. Peterson, county treasurer, presented his report which showed a cash balance on hand of $216,922.71 and other current assets of $23,678.70, together with a bonded indebtedness of $1,267,195.14, future taxes, or total assets of $1,507,796.55. Current liabilities were $23,032.16 and bonded indebtedness, $1,267,195.14, making a total of $1,306,227.30. The report was referred to the finance committee.

Supervisor Schwammer, who introduced the resolution relating to the Volstead act and who was absent Saturday when it was acted upon, endeavored to have it reconsidered but was unsuccessful. He then requested that he be given an opportunity to explain the reason for his absence and the reason for his introducing the resolution which was granted. He said he was called home on an errand and when he returned the board had adjourned. He said he is opposed to the manufacture of moonshine and considered it more harmful than the beer it replaced.

The board adjourned until 10:30 Tuesday morning to give the supervisors an opportunity to attend the funeral of Buckart Wittlin, a former member.

CALL DOCTOR IF COLD WON'T LEAVE

Health Officer Warns Against Letting Colds Develop Into Illness

"If gargles, nose treatments, fresh air and diet will not cure a cold in a couple of days, see your family physician."

This is the cure Dr. W. E. Felton, city physician offers in a season when everyone has a cold which he just cannot get rid of. Dr. Felton says that if hygienic and dietetic measures do not clear up a cold something more serious likely will develop and the family physician should be called at once. The health officer said the tendency is to let colds run until they have become a serious condition before a doctor is called in. He recommends immediate attention to prevent not only the development of sickness for that person but to prevent possible contagion.

The doctor said it scarcely was practical to recommend that people stay away from church or the movies. He said if people would gargle with warm water or any of the home remedies after being in a crowd as well as washing out their noses the danger of infection would be less.

If you have a cold, be careful of what you eat for a day or two, take a cathartic, eat plenty of fresh air, dress warmly and keep away from other people, he advises. Few people realize the infectious nature of colds and that what may be "only a cold" in one person may develop into serious illness by another person.

URGE APPLETON TO TRY FOR SKY ROUTE

Government Is Laying "Highways" With System Of Landing Fields

Appleton Chamber of Commerce is urged by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Washington, D. C., to interest itself in the mapping out of 4,000 miles of sky roadways by the government division of military aeronautics.

It is said that many cities are endeavoring to have their landing fields placed on the routes, providing they have such. Places which lack these facilities are urged to supply them and then attempt to be listed on the federal system.

Government, private and municipal landing fields will be considered when the "highways" for airplanes are laid. A landing field must consist of level, land a quarter to half a mile square, with a ground signal showing direction of the wind. It also should have oil and gasoline supply sources, a hangar where repairs may be made, and a flare signal for convenience in locating the field at night.

Appleton has no landing field now, and has found little use for one. It is possible that this matter will be taken up if airplane usage shows any marked development.

BOARD ASKED TO STUDY PLANS FOR ROAD BUILDING

Wisconsin County Boards Association Submits Plan To Supervisors Here

Members of the county board were made familiar at their Monday afternoon session with the suggested policy and the plan of highway financing for Wisconsin formulated by the committee of the Wisconsin County Boards association which is to present a bill for enactment at the coming session of the legislature. In a letter mailed to each supervisor of the state the committee said it hoped the Wisconsin county boards, at their November sessions, would carefully consider the plans formulated and if they met their views endorse them with appropriate resolutions.

The letter was accompanied by a pamphlet which gave the recommendations of the legislative committee in detail under seven subdivisions: namely, federal aid highway construction; state trunk highway; state aid highways; county aid highways; county maintained trunk systems; miscellaneous road purposes; and county or organization. After the letter and portion of the pamphlet had been read by the clerk, O. C. Rollman of Green Bay, division engineer of the Wisconsin highway commission, addressed the board concerning the proposed measure.

Mr. Rollman said that practically every county board in the state was considering the proposition. He had attended the meetings of several boards that were going to vote on it. The object of the pamphlet of the legislative committee of the County Boards association is to get the expression of the boards, he said. He did not appear before the board either in support of the proposition or against it. Each subdivision could be voted on separately, he informed the supervisors. The matter was referred to the county-state road and bridge committee.

County Can't Evade Law Requiring County Nurse

When the Barron-co nurse resolution was under consideration by the county board Friday, District Attorney Heinemann was requested to look up the law relative to whether the employment of one was optional or compulsory on the part of a county board and at the session Saturday reported it was compulsory, but that the fixing of the salary was left to the county board.

Under these conditions Supervisor Jensen of Little Chute suggested it could be cut to $1 or $5 and then raised to $300, but the district attorney said that might be considered an evasion of the law and would not relieve the county of its responsibility.

Supervisor Rohan informed the board he understood Barron-co had no nurse and made no appropriation for one, and the district attorney said there was no reason why this county could not pursue the same course so long as no one objected, but that proceedings could be commenced against the county at any time to have the law enforced. He thought the better plan would be to take steps to have the law changed the same as Barron-co.

Supervisor P. H. Ryan was opposed to having the county board go on record as trying to evade the law. It was brought out that while the salary of the county nurse was $1,800 her expenses amounted to more than $1,200. The subject was brought up by those favoring a general reduction of county expenses.

NEWBERRY RESIGNS

We don't know if Mr. Lodge and certain other statesmen have seen Newberryism in its true light, but Senator Calder of New York had reason to detect it on election day, as did Mr. Fredlinghousen across the way and now Mr. Newberry himself has had it revealed to him. The Chicago Tribune will say that Mr. Newberry ought not to have resigned, that he should have fought it out because he was in the right; either that, or it will say that it was proper for him to resign and thus confound his enemies. No one ever knows what it is the defenders of Newberryism will say.

But the fact remains that justice and decency and political morality have prevailed. The old guard thought it could put Newberry across, when it desperately needed his vote to discredit President Wilson and to hold the senate against him. Having put him over, it thought even in the elections of 1920 it had done a good job. It had about the same vision as when it rubbed its hands with satisfaction over the Payne-Aldrich tariff act and when it put its O. K. on the Fordney-McCumber act in the last session.

The first good advice Mr. Newberry received was when he was told to resign. But it took two years of administration slumping and a routing such as the Republican party had never before experienced in Michigan to bring his friends around to the point of admitting the truth. Mr. Newberry says he was an innocent victim of those who were patriotically serving their country. He says he is a much persecuted and abused man. His resignation, however, is proof of the fact to any fair-minded man that he has a guilty conscience. People who really believe that they are right, the charges such as were made against him and his campaign management were false and that title to sit in the United States senate had been confirmed, do not run in the face of fire. Mr. Newberry's letter of resignation is an astonishing document. He could not have furnished a better case against himself had that been his object. As Senator Caraway of Arkansas remarked, he has cheated the senate of an opportunity to vindicate itself in the eyes of the nation. A poll of the senate showed that Mr. Newberry was about to be ousted. He has simply sought to escape the ignominy of expulsion.

Mr. Newberry's valedictory says: "I am thankful . . . to have the eternal satisfaction of having by my vote aided in keeping the United States out of the League of Nations." He is welcome to the satisfaction. He was put there to aid in this conspiracy. The manner of his election was quite in keeping with the spirit of that conspiracy. His admission is a valuable sidelight on this humiliating chapter of American politics. Whatever Mr. Newberry or his defenders may say or think, his case terminates as a victory for cleaner politics. It will probably be some time before another attempt is made openly to purchase a seat in the United States senate.

TWO VIEWS OF AUTUMN

The pessimist says that autumn is a time of melancholy. He observes yellowing vegetation, falling leaves, and the decay of vegetation, and it suggests the decline of life and end of all things. He sits around with the blues.

The hopeful man rejoices in the crisp and tingling air of autumn, which puts new energy into his nerves and muscles. He feels that he can get out and do things which were impossible during the heats of summer. He rejoices in the harvest period as the time nature comes to her fruition and offers man another successful crop, bringing abundant grain and fruit and garden products, and the world is glad for new prosperity in trade.

If he is engaged in business, he looks at autumn as a time when new enterprises can be promoted. If he is an artisan or clerical worker, he is glad for the long evenings that bring social pleasures and opportunities for self-advancement.

No while the pessimist gathers gloom in all periods of the year, the hopeful man finds pleasant prospects around each turn of the road, as the seasons bring their succession of blessings to a beautiful and prosperous state like Wisconsin.

THE CONSCIENCE OF THE PEOPLE

Mr. Thomas R. Marshall, former vice president of the United States, has a habit of agreeably saying things that compel us to think seriously. While outlining to the Bankers' club of Detroit the plans of the Federal Coal Finding commission, of which he is a member, he remarked that he would favor repeal of all laws for recourse to the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule. Democracy, he said, lives in the conscience of the people, and organized self-control by the people should be the law, that is, the law's observance.

You may reply that this is platitudes. But what is any principle but platitude? What are the Ten Commandments but platitudes? Or the Golden Rule? Or liberty and justice? Or the fundamentals of representative government? The conscience of the people is the government and the law. The conscience is what the people are. The government is what the people want. Obedience to law is conscientious performances. When we discuss observance of the law we emphasize penalties. On the other hand, we would better cultivate the conscience which is the spirit of right and justice.

FLIGHT OF THE SULTAN

In fleeing to Malta on a British warship, as a guest of Great Britain, the Sultan explains that he did not abdicate the throne of Turkey, but took precautions for his own safety. Great Britain doubtless will justify its courtesy by asserting that he was entitled by right to asylum.

There is some diplomacy in the move. If the Sultan cannot return to Turkey, he may go to India and establish there a Moslem caliphate. Should he do this, it probably would prevent a Mohammedanist revolution in India against Great Britain, and, at the same time, confine Kemal's influence to Turkish territorial bounds.

MUSSOLINI'S STRENGTH AND WEAKNESS

There are not a few distinguished statesmen, in office and out of it, who cannot help reading with admiration Premier Mussolini's bravado in dealing with the Italian parliament. It takes a person of some self-confidence to tell a great legislative body that it must be silent and obedient, yet the truth is that domineering manner is a sign of weakness.

Imagine President Harding facing the senate and house, and saying that he expected the fullest deference from them and expected to enjoy the privilege of running this land by his own, sole will. Fancy Premier Bonar Law or Premier Poincaré declaring that they were chosen in spite of their parliaments and must be allowed to rule as dictators.

Standing before the Italian legislators, Mussolini showed his height, girth and weight, politically. The parliament will likely attend his political obsequies in the not distant future. And the Fascisti, who made Mussolini dictator, will not be among the weepers. In all probability Mussolini will fall as suddenly as he rose.

HUSBAND'S LEAGUE CRASHES

The League of Husbands has gone blooming. Sidney S. Edgar, St. Louis zinc magnate, was the promoter of the League of Husbands. Mr. Edgar appeared to be fairly well qualified for the job, too, having been three a husband. But just the same his league is like the League of Nations to Mr. Harding, deceased.

Mr. Edgar's latest wife is a young woman. Having a great deal of money, she bought some new clothes. Mr. Edgar said she was hypnotized by the sweet voices of persuasive saleswomen and salesman who called her on the telephone and told her about nice dresses and things that had just been received at the stores. He advocated a League of Husbands to combat the wiles of such salespeople for the protection of husbands' fortunes.

Launching out boldly as the prophet of the League of Husbands, the zinc magnate advertised in the papers that he would not be responsible for his wife's bills any longer. To his surprise, she sued for divorce.

Brought to an impasse, Mr. Edgar committed suicide the other day.

And that's the end of the League of Husbands. If there is to be such a league it will have to be secret, like the Ku Klux Klan. Perhaps the boys might meet and discuss things with their faces covered by old stockings drawn down over their heads. But even then there would be danger, for every wife's husband of them would go home and tell her all about what had taken place at Lodge.

No. The league is deceased.—WICHITA EAGLE.

GRANDFATHERS

Talk about the grandfathers and their mistaken ideas about "tinking cold." I have yet to meet one who can hold a candle to a certain Grampy when it comes to spotting drafts in the office and excluding all such imaginary perils from the environment.

"Your doctors nowadays run too much to fads," this doughty patient asserts. "You spend all your time and the patient's money searching for microbes, making intricate and expensive laboratory tests and preparing fearful and wonderful serums, and by the time you begin to get a line on what ails the patient his trouble has probably reached the operative stage if it hasn't automatically cleared up. The old time doctor handled cases differently. He told him one's complaint and he felt the pulse, looked at the tongue, thumped over the chest a bit, inquired about the appetite and pronounced the trouble so and so. Then without further ado he mixed up . . .

"Yes," the doctor rejoins, "those good old days of shotgun or blunderbuss therapy were the halcyon days. I wish I could have practiced then. Nowadays with the laity so well informed on health matters, it doesn't work so well. Suppose, now, you came to me today for the first time about your bronchitis. Suppose I followed the fashion of the old doctors you describe, and pronounced your trouble a touch of catarrh. 'Would you feel satisfied?' And suppose I then proceeded to concoct some horrible shotgun conglomeration . . .

"The old doctor handed out a combination of real medicines that started you right on the treatment," Grampy insists. "In the old days you knew you were sick and you knew what you had."

"A slight cold on the chest, perhaps," the doctor ventures facetiously.

"You know just what ailed you. But now," Grampy regrets to say, "you get so little medicine and so many examinations, you're half in doubt whether you're a malingering or a miserable mortal in the last stages of . . .

To hear Grampy tell it one would think the old time doctor with his ponderous ways and his limited knowledge had possession of some secret or mystic method with which he could knock light, medium or heavy "colds" into cocked hats in no time, no matter how deeply or firmly seated they were in the chest. Grampy is convinced that his chronic bronchitis is a cold settled in the chest and nothing will change him. Like many other misguided victims of chronic bronchitis and allied troubles, he employs a physician, pays substantial fees for medical advice and care, yet unhesitatingly rejects the doctor's advice about the most essential matters of hygiene. "You may make some bare brained people believe such nonsense, but not me," he declares. "If exposure doesn't cause colds, why does more grow worse every winter?" And no matter how painstakingly and explicitly the doctor teaches him why the bronchitis gets worse in the season when Grampy spends his time indoors in foul air and desert dryness, Grampy doesn't heed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Iodine To Prevent Colds

Please print the directions for taking iodine to prevent and cure colds.—(Mrs. H. P. M.)

Answer—A deficiency of iodine in the food in regions far from the sea or at considerable altitude accounts for the frequently simple colds among children, particularly girls. This deficiency may be supplied by administering each spring and autumn a few drops of iodine in some of the public schools in cities of the great lakes region, a course of iodine in some form, it doesn't matter, particularly what form of iodine, save that very small quantities are necessary.

One or two drops of tincture of iodine may be given each day, in a glass of water, for a period of six weeks in the spring and again for a period of six weeks in the fall.

One or two grains of sodium iodide may be given daily, dissolved in not less than a quart of the drinking water for a period of a month each spring and autumn.

This has not only prevented colds on a large scale when systematically given, but it has cured many cases of simple colds.

Persons with scrophulous glands should not experiment with iodine in any form, unless under medical direction and observation.

Castor Oil And Salts

Which is the most harmless physic, castor oil or salts?—(T. C. C.)

Neither can be called a harmless physic, but it is difficult to say which is the more harmful. Perhaps salts work more havoc among the adults; castor oil does more harm to infants, for adults abuse the one, and infants are maltreated with the other.

Quadroon And White

What are the chances of the offspring of a quadroon and a white being born black?—(H. M.)

Answer—Some of the children may have more pigment than the quadroon parent, some may have less. The average degree of pigmentation of the skin of all the children would be less than that of the darker parent. The chance of a black child being born of such parentage is practically nil.

ADDRESS ON ARMISTICE DAY
BRIMMER CONFLICT OF OPINION

Former President Woodrow Wilson's address on Armistice Day, when he took occasion to renew his endorsement of the Versailles treaty, with especial attention to the League of Nations provisions contained therein, reopened the general controversy over the international relations of the United States. It also served to direct attention to the fact that he still is a factor that must be reckoned with in the Democratic party. Following as it did closely on the heels of the election results there was a general acceptance of the former chief executive's utterances as serving notice that he again feels sufficiently able to assume leadership of that following in the country which endorses his policies.

"We have given advice and exhortation where neighborly cooperation was needed," says the New York WORLD (Dem.), "and that help was pledged in the name of both political parties more than two years ago. With Mr. Wilson, the WORLD hopes and believes that, in the light of recent decisions, 'we may renew today our faith in the future.' It is the opinion of the Baltimore SUN (Dem.), that "Mr. Wilson naturally feels intensely on the subject, and some of those who opposed the League of Nations deserve his scorn. But the great majority of Americans, it is to be assumed, were earnest and patriotic in their attitude, according to their lights, and appeals to their reason were apt to be more persuasive than denunciation from any source." It might also be remembered, the Washington STAR (Ind.) makes clear, that "Wilsonism spells the League of Nations, the League of Nations, Wilsonism. Well, why not? Mr. Wilson is a world figure, and the League of Nations is a world issue. And so it is that a revival of Wilsonism means a revival of leagueism." Taking this into account the New York TRIBUNE (Rep.), says "it is gratifying all around to note that he has now regained his fighting spirit and is again polishing up his political addresses. The good wishes of the country go out to him in his first appearance as a war horse who scents the battle afar and its eager to engage once more in its tumult and shouting."

"Trying to construct something out of a negation which his incurable schoolmaster mind rashly assumes to be no negation at all, in order to support the previous fallacies to which his mischievous omniscience pledged him," says the Wall Street JOURNAL (Ind.), "Mr. Wilson typically breaks off his own point. Where, and if, he is thinking constructively, he means the active cooperation for meddling in other people's affairs. But he is neither thinking nor speaking constructively when he calls that 'peace.' Because of the state of his health the Richmond NEWS LEADER (Ind. Dem.) is not so certain that Mr. Wilson can force his policies into the future programme of the United States but, whereas "two years ago the answer would have been fully negative; today—who can say?" The Jersey City JOURNAL (Dem.) believes that "the former president has once again eagerly spoken for Americans the country over on a topic that has a foremost place in their minds. Armistice day has been observed, and if he is thinking, in a fashion that befitted it and a way that should produce results."

The Chicago TRIBUNE (Prog. Rep.), argues that "most Americans have been made aware of the soundness of their position not to counter-sign Mr. Wilson's folly but if the Democratic leaders think we are mistaken in this another discussion will not be without advantage to the nation." Endorsing this attitude the Kansas City STAR (Prog. Rep.), holds that "Mr. Wilson is still living in the past. It is hard for a man once the center of things to realize that the world has moved and left him isolated." On the other hand the Newark NEWS (Ind.), holds that "a brief speech appealed to the moral sense and sound judgment which are the courts in which the American people make their final judgments. 'Mr. Wilson was right in his statement that certain statesmen are 'slipping backward.' The Norfolk LEADER DISPATCH (Ind. Dem.), is convinced, and holds that "up to this time our foreign policy is wholly nebulous, unformed. But if it has any trend, if it moves in any direction, it moves toward participation in the affairs of Europe and the East. And the men who seek to check that movement are 'slipping backward.'"

The speech was just exactly what was to have been expected, in the opinion of the Milwaukee SENTINEL (Ind.), and "its significance arises from the possibility that this first public address from the former president presages his reentry in some degree into national politics and his resumption of the leadership which he laid down when he retired, a broken invalid, from the presidency." The Wheeling REGISTER (Dem.), holds that "the patience of Woodrow Wilson will one day be rewarded," while the Winston-Salem JOURNAL (Dem.), says that "the United States is not going to remain contented with the armistice."

Those who had "hoped for an inspiring message got nothing of the kind," the Worcester TELEGRAPH (Rep.), asserts. It is the same old story again—insisting that the Versailles treaty means a just peace, and accusing those who think otherwise of unworthy motives. Until Mr. Wilson admits that opponents of the League and treaty have something on their side his messages can appeal only to fanatical men and hysterical women. His address likewise emphasized the lack of leadership in the Democratic party in the opinion of the Baltimore NEWS (Rep.), which, however, considers it more probable that "Mr. Wilson will become a hero of romance rather than a hero of paragon of peace, has come back."

Immigrant Boy Is Great Actor

Salzburg, old Austrian Salzburg, was wide awake during August. It hardly was able to take care of all those visitors from foreign countries who arrived to attend the festivals in honor of Mozart.

A dark man with benignant eyes was often seen strolling through the festival grounds. "The man with the angel's voice," the visitors called him. The world knew him as Alexander Moissi, Austria's foremost actor.

About 20 years ago Alexander, a poor Italian boy, emigrated to Austria, making his way by singing at street corners. A theater director picked him up for the sake of his beautiful voice, trained him, put him on the stage in small parts, and through his golden voice the poor Italian immigrant boy became "the great Moissi."

The critics in Vienna had laughed at him first. After two years they began to consider him. After three years they praised Alexander Moissi. After four years they didn't dare to attack him any more.

Moissi always considered himself an Austrian, although he probably spent more time on the stage in Germany than in Austria. Berlin went wild about the good looking foreigner. For with his voice he combined another rare quality, passion.

Acting as fervently as though he were to die at the end of the evening was the second secret of Moissi's great success. With this passion, and well with his voice he became a favorite with the women in his audiences; he was claimed to be the most adored actor in Europe.

Like Sarah Bernhardt, his voice seemed to throw a magic spell over the audience. Even serious critics fell under his charm and were apt to overlook the fact that his acting often was faulty and not profound—before the war.

A great change came over Alexander Moissi during the war years. He enlisted in the Austrian army and was caught by his former Italian brothers. The Italians placed the actor in a Swiss camp where he enjoyed full liberty. During his stay in Switzerland he learned from 40 to 50 parts in German.

His return to the stage of Vienna and Berlin was a triumph. His acting was deeper; it spoke of the sufferings through which the Italian-Austrian necessarily had to go during the war. Moreover, it was rumored that consumption had a hold on him and that Moissi might not live long.

When the town of Salzburg held its annual festivals, Moissi began to reap his greatest triumphs. His wonderful passion, his cello-like voice seemed to have matured to their utmost height. And since they saw him in Salzburg, the art lovers of Europe and America acclaim Moissi as the greatest living actor, though they know he may hold his title for but a short time.

THE TRAGEDY OF DEAFNESS

By Dr. R. H. Bishop

Probably no infirmity steals on one so much like a thief in the night as deafness. Nor is there any so irreparable when once established. It is always possible and some cure of the affliction's advance but no cure.

Most people with defective hearing give little heed until they realize, by accident, perhaps, that they cannot hear the watch or the clock tick as they were wont to do, or until there is a roaring in the ears or a dizzy spell.

Most chronic deafness results from frequent and consecutive colds in the head, from congestion in the upper air passages, and often as a result of grippe, pneumonia, meningitis, tuberculosis, other bacteria. Or inflammation will close up that tube, destroying the equilibrium which ought naturally to obtain between the air inside the ear drum and the air without the drum in the external ear.

It is not generally realized how great a handicap deafness is in the modern struggle for existence.

The number of those who are becoming deaf is constantly increasing. Their efficiency lessens with their hearing. And their mental activity is progressively diminished, because the acuteness and the sureness of their mental process, of their perceptions and consequently of their judgments, depend very largely on the sensations conveyed to their brains via their sense organs.

So, if you would prevent deafness, beware of colds. Treat them promptly, never allow one to run along for a considerable length of time.

THE EAGLE FABRIC NAME

WHEN you buy Eagle Shirts you find in the label not only the name of the make but the Eagle name of the fabric as well. This helps a man in his necessarily limited knowledge of cloths. It makes it easy to repeat on what he likes. It takes the guess out of shirt buying.

A novel idea—a good idea. Let us show you, now.

AMERICAN NAMES IN FRANCE
Paris—Just as puzzling as "gout americain" applied to sweet champagne is the denomination "homard a l'americain" give to a dish of lobster with pepper sauce.

The origin of "gout americain" champagne has been discovered, but is not generally enough known to prevent hundreds of American tourists every day in the year ordering the stuff and then kicking because it is too sweet. For although the bottle generally bears a label with the stars and stripes, fluttering under the neck, it is certain that the United States of America, even in the ancient alcoholic days, never used this particular kind. Americans have always preferred "extra dry." That is, North Americans.

It was the South Americans who liked their champagne semi-sweet and so this semi-sweet fluid was labelled "gout americain," or "American taste." The American flag was added by some ignorant label-designer.

So much for that—which is easy to understand. But what about "homard a l'americain"? When did one ever eat a peppery lobster stew in America? Newburg or "live broiled" with melted butter are the usual forms in which America knows the succulent crustacean.

The explanation is not so simple this time, because South America can claim parentage no more than North. A French servant has discovered the key to the riddle. He has found that this particular manner of serving the lobster originated in Brittany, among the fishermen. And when, after many decades, the recipe reached the chefs of Paris, they entered it on the menu as "homard a l'americain," after the name of the American peninsula, which is extreme Brittany.

In time—just how much time is not stated—the name got corrupted. In place of the unfamiliar "homard a l'americain," the popular "americain" crept in. And so today, in almost any Paris restaurant, the head waiter or recommends the dish to his American patrons, under the impression that he is giving them some old-fashioned American cooking.

Conversation overheard at an American bank in Paris:
Customer: How much is the mark today?
Teller: 4.68 to the dollar, sir.

Customer: Well, I'm going into Germany, how many marks do you think I'll need?
Teller: That depends, sir. Do you expect to stay long?
Customer: That's what I don't know, I'm just going into Germany to look around, and if I like it I'll stay.

Teller: I would advise your buying only as many marks as you need for the first few days, sir. The mark is falling so fast you can't tell where it will be next week.

Customer: That's a good idea. How many will I need if I'm just going into Germany for a few days?
The noticeable thing about this conversation is not the idiosyncy of it, it is not so very idiotic—everybody likes to have a long and foolish conversation with a teller or almost anybody else when he is steeling himself to the purchase of foreign money—but the fact that so many people talk about "going INTO Germany."

You never hear anybody say, "I am going into England," or "I am going into Italy," or Belgium, or Spain, or Switzerland.

But, almost invariably, they use that expression nowadays about Germany.

They say it much as they might say, "I am going into Central Africa," or "into the Canadian woods," or "into the jungle," or "into the night."

There seems to be a certain spirit of adventure in the average mind about traveling in German. One likes to feel, and make others feel, that one is doing a rash, bold, hazardous thing.

When you hear anybody say "I am going into Germany," you can just picture the images that are floating vaguely about in his mind.

He sees himself "going in" with a bird-gun over one shoulder and a leather bottle of water slung over the other. His mental knapsack is full of chocolate and pemmican, and his pockets are full of colored beads and fake jewelry, to be traded with the natives.

Of course that is exaggerated, but that expresses the spirit of the thing. A trip "into" Germany is a trip into the Unknown, and anything may happen.

Whereas the main trouble with Germany, from the tourist viewpoint, is that it is too civilized. This in the sense of civilization meaning government.

There is too much government in Germany.

You meet the government at every turn, in the shape of taxes and restrictions, from the time your passport is examined at the frontier until the day when you leave the country and the German export customs inspectors take away from you all the merchandise you have purchased during your stay.

Everywhere I have gone into Germany—but there I am doing the same thing!

Q. What is the proper time of year to attempt tree surgery? M. A.

A. As a general rule, tree surgery can be undertaken at almost any time of the year when sap is not running too actively and the weather is not cold enough to freeze cement, if this is being used. In most trees the sap will interfere with the work only while the buds and leaves are expanding in the spring. Cement work will be ruined if it is frozen before it is about setting. It is not likely to be injured by frost after setting for a few days.

Badgers Add Artistry To Gale's Play

Fine Points Of "Miss Lulu Bett" Will Be Developed In Showing Here

The Wisconsin Players, who will bring "Miss Lulu Bett," Zona Gale's Pulitzer prize play to Appleton on Dec. 8, have spent more than $2,000 to make the play artistic in every detail. Teams for the selling of tickets are being organized now and people will be given opportunity to buy early.

When the play was presented in Milwaukee during the teachers' convention, many people who had seen the New York professional production said that the Wisconsin Players excelled in distinctive scenic effects, finish of acting and all around smoothness of performance. Miss Gale, author of the play, said after the first appearance of the Players in Milwaukee that they were able to bring out the subtle shades in the story far more appreciatively than did the high-salaried professional actor in the original company.

The Players' association in Milwaukee is a workshop of dramatic art where every phase of acting and production is taught and experimented with. Many of the members of the group have been professional actors, who are studying new effects and working at their art from the creative standpoint rather than for the box office receipt point of view. The work therefore would be termed, in correctly if called, amateur. The Players and their dream of a little theatre on Jefferson-st. in Milwaukee have attracted many writers, actors and artists to that city which few casual visitors to the city know about.

Elton Hackett, a young Milwaukee artist and a member of the cast of the play, has made two complete sets of scenery which will be brought to Appleton. He has achieved some good small town touches in his work in both the interior and porch settings.

GIRL NOW WELL AND STRONG

Daughter Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as Mother Advised

Wauseon, Ohio.—"My daughter always had backache and leg-ache at certain periods and could not be on her feet at those times. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing girls so much good and I began to take it. That is two years ago and she is a different girl since then, able to do any work she wants to do—although she is still careful not to do heavy work—and so well and strong. We recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers with ailing daughters, and I give you permission to publish this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. A. M. BURKHOLDER, Route No. 2 Box 1, Wauseon, Ohio.

Stabbed by Neuritis!

Many people suffer attacks by this arch-fiend commonly called "nerve inflammation." The first warning is usually a sharp, stabbing pain which may "come and go" or hurt constantly. You may feel it in the shoulder, neck, forearm, small of the back, or down the thigh and leg to the heel. It is sometimes mistaken for sciatica, rheumatism or neuralgia, which troubles often do end up in neuritis. No matter where you have nerve pains or what caused them, you can get quick relief without using narcotics or poisons. Just apply Tysmol over the part that hurts and in 2 to 3 minutes the pain should be gone. Tysmol is absorbed through the pores of the skin. It has a soothing, healing effect upon the diseased nerves, gradually helping to restore them to healthy condition. Don't suffer any longer. Price $1 at Schlitz Bros. Co. or any reliable druggist. An Old-Fashioned Thanksgiving With New-Fashioned Music

OLD-FASHIONED in spirit—old-fashioned in observance—old-fashioned in good things to eat—but new-fashioned in music. Because—there's a Gulbransen, the modern musical instrument.

A Gulbransen that anyone can play—yes—but more than that. A Gulbransen that anyone can play well.

So well, in fact, that it fools the folks in the next room into thinking it is hand-playing!

This is not a dream—not a boast. It is being done in thousands of homes with this most highly-developed, this most enjoyed of musical instruments.

Due to two things: first, superiority of Gulbransen performance; second, Gulbransen Instruction Rolls, which quickly teach correct playing.

SET LAST DATE FOR SOLDIER TRAINING

Applications For Vocational Training Must Be Made By Dec. 16

Former service men who are entitled to vocational training at the expense of the government because of a service disability must make application for the training before Dec. 16, 1922. According to the "deficiency bill," approved June 16, 1921, applications are limited to 18 months after the passage of the bill, which will be Dec. 16. Although the application for vocational training must be in the hands of the veterans' bureau by that date, the men are given one year in which to enter the course after notification of acceptance.

The time limit for filing of applications for vocational training should not be confused with applications for compensation, it is said, although the two applications now are made on one form, 536 which was revised in March 1922. Claims for compensation must be filed within five years of the date of discharge. Compensation is payable only for a disability which was incurred or aggravated in service.

or occurred within one year following discharge, except that in cases of active pulmonary tuberculosis and neuro-psychiatric disability more than 10 per cent in extent, the time limit has been extended two years.

Applications will be received by the Red Cross office in the army or by Alfred Bossett, service officer of Onev Johnston post of the American Legion.

REBECCA OF PRUDENCE ISLAND AT THROTTLE

By The Associated Press. Prudence Island, R. I.—This island today boasts the only young woman licensed ferry engineer in New England and possibly in the country. She is Miss Rebecca Chase, of 27 summers, and she rises early every morning to take her place at the throttle of the ferryboat Harvest, connecting the island with Bristol.

Shortly after America entered the World war her grandfather, owner of the ferry, unable to obtain an engineer, called upon Miss Chase, who was an experienced automobile driver. She succeeded in passing the necessary examinations.

Miss Chase keeps her domain below decks spick and span. She believes in being a good housekeeper on shipboard as well as at home.

RADIO NEWS

The Americans connected for some years by means of land and water cables with the more distant parts of the world are now connected by radio. All day reports come that give the countries of South America are giving free run to the development of the science. The all time aim is the construction of stations powerful enough to transmit and receive messages over long distances.

The main difficulty in radio communication is between the northern and southern continents has been the ever increasing interference from static. Messages could not cross the equator especially in the northern and southern hemisphere. The static waves would sustain in trying to penetrate the torrid zone.

After considerable study, however, radio engineers have succeeded in creating a powerful station at a point just east of Rio de Janeiro in Brazil from which they hope to send messages that will be heard easily in New York and even in London. Tests are still being made toward the perfection of this station.

Meanwhile the South American countries are helping the development of radio within their own borders. Brazil has a powerful broadcasting station at Rio de Janeiro and is encouraging its inhabitants in the adoption of this new form of entertainment.

While it is expected to enact legislation which will put radio broadcasting on the same liberal basis in which it finds itself in the United States, Uruguay has modified its rigid laws governing the installation of radio stations and is prepared to issue licenses for the erection of broadcasting stations. Argentina has also modified its regulations. A powerful radio broadcasting station is expected soon to send radio concerts out of Buenos Aires.

Other parts of South America also are contemplating advancement in the radio field.

SECRECY ASSURED
A diagram of the inventor of telephone photography has just perfected an apparatus by which radio messages are assured absolute secrecy.

The invention consists essentially of six discs at the transmitting end, each with six corresponding discs at the receiving end. Only those having this receiving apparatus and knowing the combination can tune in correctly on the transmitted message.

The words are sent out as they are spoken but are converted into dots and dashes by the transmitting disc. These are translated into the original message by the receiving disc that happen to be tuned with the transmitters.

Between words and during delays the machine transmits continuous signals which are not recorded by the receiving instrument but which are intended to confuse would-be eavesdroppers.

HERE ARE THE MEN WHO MAY RULE SENATE

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

In the next Congress the Republicans, while they'll have small majorities, in name, in both houses, won't have the kind they can depend on.

There will be enough Republicans, both among senators and representatives, who recognize party ties only when they happen to feel disposed to do so, to hold the balance of power, with a few out-and-out independents, as between the really partisan Republicans and Democratic groups of lawmakers.

This is the alignment: Senate—Republicans, 53; Democrats, 42; Farmer-Labor, 1. House of Representatives—Republicans, 226; Democrats, 206; Socialist, 1; Farmer-Labor, 1; independent, 1.

But in the Senate the Republicans cannot depend on Borah, Brookhart, Frazier, Howell, Johnson, Ladd, La Follette, Norbeck and Norris, respectively of Idaho, Iowa, North Dakota, Nebraska, California, North Dakota, again, Wisconsin, South Dakota and again Nebraska. Frazier, in fact, should not be classed strictly as a Republican at all but as a member of the Non-Partisan League. There is also Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota.

TEN HOLD CONTROL

That means a group of 10, quite capable of sticking together, who hold the casting votes in the United States Senate.

In the House the lineup is not quite so clear-cut. Suffice it to say, however, that a majority of only 17 is entirely insufficient—counting on the Republicans whom the administration can't be sure of—to be relied on. In fact, it is agreed that the Republican organization isn't even sure of enough of itself to know yet what leader the doubtfuls will permit it to name for speaker.

Of the Republican senators with whom it is not expected party discipline will count, R. B. Howell is a new man to national political life. He is manager of public utilities in Omaha, was a warm supporter of Theodore Roosevelt and made his Senatorial campaign largely on the issue of pushing collection of America's foreign debt.

Peter Norbeck has served a term in the Senate and was governor of South Dakota for two terms. By occupation he is a contracting well driller. He is avowedly of the advanced progressive Republican type.

FARMER-LABOR MAN Dr. Henrik Shipstead, whose political career has been limited previously to his run for the Senate and to a campaign for governor of Minnesota on the Non-Partisan League and labor ticket, won his seat on the Farmer-Labor ticket.

George W. Norris has had two terms as senator already. Previously, as a member of the House of Representatives, he led the fight which unseated "Uncle Joe" Cannon as speaker. Cannon's opponents' claim being that he was too conservative.

Dr. Edwin F. Ladd is a teacher and chemist. He has served a term in the Senate and was federal food administrator of North Dakota during the war.

Robert M. La Follette has served as governor of Wisconsin, in Congress and in the Senate. He has a reputation as the author of legislation on the "advanced" type.

William E. Borah has been in the Senate for two terms. He was notable as one of the chief opponents of President Wilson's League of Nations plan. Borah is a Boise, Idaho, lawyer.

Like Borah, Hiram Johnson fought the Wilson League of Nations plan vigorously. He was one of the prosecutors of the celebrated San Francisco "hoodling cases" in 1908 and 1907, served two terms as governor of California on a platform dealing mainly with the elimination of corruption interference in the state's affairs, was a founder of the Progressive party, ran for the vice-presidency on the ticket with Colonel Roosevelt and has had a term in the Senate.

Lynn J. Frazier won the senatorial election despite the fact that, not long ago, he was recalled, under the North Dakota law, as governor of his state, an office to which he was elected on the Non-Partisan League ticket. Thus he has the remarkable record of having been swept into office by a large majority of votes swept out of it by the ballots of the same voters and then, again by the same votes, swept into the Senate. He is a farmer.

Smith W. Brookhart is a smalltown Iowa lawyer, who farms on the side. He was a colonel in the World War. A few years he has risen to great political power in his state. He made his run avowedly as an advanced progressive.

SCHOOL FIGHT GOES TO JUDGE WERNER

Change Of Venue Granted By Judge Spencer In Case Against Teacher

A change of venue has been granted by Judge A. M. Spencer of municipal court in the case of joint school district No. 9, towns Grand Chute and Greenville, vs. Miss Phoebe Heenan. The case will be heard by Judge Edgar V. Werner in circuit court on Dec. 6.

Michael J. McCarthy, who says he is a director of the school board, brought suit against Miss Heenan, teacher, and secured an injunction restraining her from teaching temporarily on the ground that she was not the regularly appointed teacher. Miss Heenan asserted she had a certificate issued by the real school board. Two separate lawsuits claim the election at the last annual school meeting.

STATE COMMITTEE AIDING RIPARIAN FIGHT FOR RELIEF

Dams On Fox River And Lands Flooded By Wolf River To Be Inspected

Riparian and waterpower interests each will present their problems at the 3-day hearing that opened in the city hall of Oshkosh Tuesday morning and is to continue until Thursday evening. The riparian interests were organized three years ago and have presented a claim to the war department of $6,000,000 for damages caused by high water during flood seasons.

A conference was held in Appleton Friday when dams and government locks were inspected. Alan H. Trippe, president of the Association for Relief of High Water, Maj. F. S. BRUSEWITZ ASKS MONEY TO REMOVE SNOW FROM ROADS

Annual Highway Report Shows Paving Limited—Roads Are Improved

Among the reports presented to the county board Tuesday morning was the tenth annual report and financial statement of A. C. Brusewitz, county highway commissioner. Mr. Brusewitz called attention to the work accomplished this year, which he said was not as great as the year previous, but in his estimation the quality was better. Because of unfavorable conditions the Stephensville-Greenville and Dale-Medina roads were not completed so all the additional concrete mileage he could report was two and two-thirds.

The commissioner said some of the stenciled work on the state and county trunk highways had been refinished and that patrolmen had done excellent work. In addition to the two and two-thirds miles of new concrete pavement five miles of gravel and crushed stone roads had been added to improve highways of the county. In resurfacing work Mr. Brusewitz said he had improved 12 miles of shoulder work on county trunk lines D, P and U, and in addition to this he had resurfaced several miles of county trunk lines.

Under county and town aid bridges the commissioner reported the completion of Ryan, DeBruin and Kerkhof bridges in the town of Ellington; Romanesko bridge and extension in Freedom; Guernsey creek bridge in Deer Creek; Tanager No. 2 bridge in Maple Creek and Sniderville north bridge on the county line between Brown and Outagamie counties and several others.

Relative to removal of snow from the main thoroughfares Mr. Brusewitz said: "The question of removing snow from our main traveled highways is causing considerable anxiety. Heretofore, your honorable body has made appropriations for such purposes, and the money has been expended. Personally, as your commissioner, I believe that an appropriation should be made to provide for keeping the main traveled highways between villages and cities open to travel."

Among other reports submitted to the board were those of the county training school board, committee on common schools, superintendent of the workhouse and general report of the county-state road and bridge committee which was held over from last week.

Chairman Ryan announced the appointment of Supervisors Rademacher, Reiche, Carpenter and Beck as the special committee to investigate certain highway petitions presented Monday.

A petition to designate a certain highway between Clintonville and Green Bay, 42 miles, as a county trunk line, signed by 45 freeholders, was referred to the county-state road and bridge committee. A large highway map was ordered purchased for the county. The board adjourned to 9:30 Wednesday morning.

BEG PARDON

The vote on the resolution relating to the Volstead act which came before the county board Saturday was on the tabling of the resolution which many considered out of place before the board and was no expression of how the members stood on the act itself, according to D. J. Ryan, chairman. The father of Henry O'Connell complained that the item in the Post-Crescent stating the young man was fined $10 in municipal court for speeding is untrue. Records at the police station show that Henry O'Connell was arraigned in court on a speeding charge, that the court remitted the fine but ordered him to pay costs amounting to $3.20.

Eats Breakfast Here, Supper In St. Louis

Appleton Men Test Great Concrete Highway In Two Day Endurance Run To St. Louis And Return

"No, this was not a speed run. It was simply an endurance run," said J. D. Steele this morning. "Excessive speed is neither advisable nor necessary. It is just a case of sticking to it. Five hundred fifty-two miles in 17 1/2 hours, running time, is what it took on Saturday to check into the Statler Hotel, St. Louis, taking time from Downer's Drug Store clock at Appleton."

"If this performance is in any sense a record, it will not long stand up," said Mr. Steele. "The conditions were not wholly good because of heavy rain which continued from Appleton to Chicago and because of washed out bridges in southern Illinois, necessitating tedious detours through Illinois gumbo, one of which resulted in a delay of an hour and five minutes working ourselves out of a mud hole. Without these delays any one else could make considerable improvement over our time."

J. W. Darrow of the Auto Maintenance Co. accompanied Mr. Steele on the trip.

The total time elapsed to St. Louis from Appleton was 20 1/2 hours and running time 17 1/2 hours. Three hours were consumed in working out of the mud, in waiting for the trains to unblock the crossings, to repair a disconnected battery wire and refills of gas and oil and for delays in traffic when going through Chicago.

"It is a bit too soon," said Mr. Steele, "to take too literally the sentimental references in the descriptions of this major highway. 'A continuous ribbon of concrete from Green Bay to St. Louis' is not yet true. Nor are picturesque references to 'continuous bands of concrete linking the sturdy north with the beautiful southland.' In the main," said Mr. Steele, "the highways in Illinois are up to the descriptions so far as the country stretches are concerned but when one gets to a city, he is confronted by conditions which would make green with envy the famous Zion City road in its palmier days of decrepitude. The vision of a continuous ribbon of concrete is pretty well carried out so far as county and state roads are concerned. Many of the cities have not caught the idea, perhaps due to low financial resources or low public spirit."

"In the cities at the southern end of the run, this lack of public enterprise was particularly marked. Direction signs through the cities were almost entirely lacking. The city roads were abominable and the local garage men did not show the characteristic resource or pep of the garage men we have around Appleton. In one city, we counted six autos stalled in the gumbo but one block off the main street of the town. The local garage men had left the victims stranded there because, as they stated, there was no use trying to get them out until the roads had dried out. If a tourist gets stuck in that country, he must rely on his own resources to get himself out of the muck," said Mr. Steele.

The downward journey was made, after leaving Chicago, through St. George, Danville and Effingham. This optional route one has from Chicago to St. Louis. The return journey, which took 20 hours running time, was made by way of Springfield, Peoria, La Salle and Joliet. The latter route is more scenic but about 50 miles longer including detours. The return trip measured 602 miles and was made on Sunday and Sunday night. Mr. Darrow made the entire upward run while Mr. Steele did the driving on the entire downward run. The round trip is 1154 miles and was done by the Appleton men in two days, the tourists arriving in Appleton early Monday morning. A ducky driving a Ford truck tried

H. S. Democracy Pupils To Tour City For Study

When you read about all the things that are being taught in the high school in a practical and direct contact was don't you have a feeling that your education could have been made just as interesting for you? You have a sort of cheated feeling, don't you?

Well here is another thing to make you jealous of those kids. The problems of democracy class under direction of H. H. Helble is making a definite study of Appleton and its problems. On Tuesday and Wednesday mornings the third hour class, of 16 students will tour the city in five automobiles. The trip will be conducted by O. F. Weissgerber, city engineer.

The trip will include visits to the various proposed city zones, to the proposed bridge sites, to the proposed junior high school sites, to possible additions to the city, and to new streets which will be laid out. The students in their classes decide for themselves what should be the proper sites and they are encouraged to make their own decisions rather than to follow the ones which have been made.

In order that the students may be well informed on all subjects which they are taking up, various means are used for general information. A short time ago, a debate was held on the Cherry street bridge site problem with Donald Joyce and Maurice Peerenboom on the negative and Coleman Dreaser and Cyril Kornely on the affirmative side. It resulted in a two-to-one vote for the Lake-side. A committee on zoning which includes Ray Stangle, Walter Vaughn, Arlene Ingersoll and Herbert Helb will draft a zoning ordinance for the city and present it to the class soon.

Washington, D. Pointing out that the immigration quotas applying to both these nationalities have been filled for the current year, the committee urges that Greeks and Armenians now held at the Ellis Island station and other refugees be given the opportunity of admission for a limited time.

Geneva—The tourist trade in Switzerland has fallen to such a low ebb that Swiss railroads are considering ways and means to revive it. To this end they have offered reductions in railroad fares amounting to 30 per cent to parties of English tourists, effective Jan. 1. A similar reduction probably will be offered later to Americans.

This—is what destroys clothes

At the demonstration on Thursday, Friday and Saturday you will see the most wonderful method of wringing clothes.

The twisting, wring, the grating rub, that tears the fabric and cuts in half the life of a garment is eliminated. The hands have nothing to do. The washday labors of scrubbing and wringing are over for you if—if you will install a Marswells Washer, the American Beauty of Washing Machines.

The matter is a personal one. Thousands of women have stopped scrubbing their knuckles, wrinkling and cracking the tender flesh on the hands. They have decided to let machines take the burden of the work, and in so doing, have simply added years to their life, made washday no more tiresome or any less pleasant than baking day or sewing day.

Our special demonstration will be featured by the presence of a factory representative who will give you all the time necessary to outline and demonstrate the really splendid features of the Marswells.

American Women Defy Paris Edict In Skirt War; Popular Length Is One Elected In U. S.

WHO wants to wear her skirts so long that they will sweep the side walk?

No one.

"Who wants to wear her skirts so long that when she sits down in her office they wipe up the floor?"

No one.

"But who wants to wear skirts so long that they hamper motion and look ridiculous?"

No one.

Appleton women, in their usual quiet but persistent way, have joined hands with other sensible American women to demonstrate once and for all to Parisian designers that they must provide charming gowns which are practical in the busy and efficient life of the American woman or the women will boycott their creations. For years, Parisian designers have been sending the most extreme of their costumes to America where they found a big sale at a big price. American women had no confidence in American gowns until Paris went just a few inches too far.

MADE THEM LONG

Parisian designers who had loathed the ungainly short skirt decided in their velvet and brocade littered workrooms that the American woman was ready for a change. That change according to the Frenchwoman was to be no longer skirts, but skirts which reached to the ground. The usual style propaganda was spread about and the foreign designers expected the American woman to bow gracefully or as gracefully as she could in knee length sport skirts and accept.

But the American woman said: "No long skirts in my wardrobe. I'm too busy to trail a long skirt around with me all day. I need dresses that get me not only from the beauty standpoint but from that of utility. How could I hold down my job or even attend my meetings in such ridiculous outfits? If Paris doesn't want to set the fashion the way we want it, we'll give our own designers a chance. They understand our needs and our tastes. More and more the French do not."

With this little declaration of independence from French styles in her mind even though she has not formulated it or voted it, the American woman or girl goes out to buy her clothes. When she tries on afternoon gowns, she looks at the drapes, the uneven hem and the novel trimmings and she likes them. She picks out those which are least extreme, however, and buys from that group.

HEIGHT NOW 7 INCHES

But when it comes to street clothes, every woman has an opinion of her own unless she belongs to that small class of American women who buy whatever they are told is in style. In the eastern and western cities, where the street sweeping gown is being fought, the women are demanding that the street clothes be kept several inches from the ground. Appleton women are demanding nothing, but new made long. Most of them have decided that they have made a mistake and are going back to what the men call a "sensible length."

"We know better than to try to make Appleton women wear street sweeping skirts," said one saleswoman. "After several years of freedom from the old foolishness about showing one's ankles and being modest about the length of one's skirt, women are not taking kindly to this idea about being uncomfortable for the sake of style. They are setting their own style. It is my opinion that the much maligned flapper who 'wants what she wants when she wants it' is the cause of this obstinate regimentation toward the French designers. After all if they want to sell things to American women, they must study them as different from the 'French women.'"

LONG SKIRTS DOOMED

According to the saleswomen in the stores, the women will never consider wearing such unhealthful clothes as they did in the last long skirt era. They may allow the skirts to come down to ankle length but that is the extreme. More than any other type of woman, the American woman wants to be bothered by her clothes. When style gets in her way, style must give place to something practical even though the designers feel that it lacks beauty. That point is also hotly contested by the women.

The fashion fight right now is resulting in demonstrating to designers that they must watch their steps or they will lose their jobs.

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to prepare, and saves you about $5.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest. Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup. To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 3 1/2 ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and tastes very pleasant. You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs. Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

100 POSTERS AID TO SENIOR AUCTION

Tempting Viands Will Be Offered In Bidding At High School Nov. 29

Big posters, little posters, bright posters, artistic posters, all of them clever posters, have been submitted in the competition for advertising the senior auction at Appleton high school, which will take place on Wednesday, Nov. 29 in order to provide Thanksgiving cheer barrels to all deserving families in Appleton. Two prizes were offered by the advertising committee for the best posters attracting attention to the auction and more than 100 were submitted. The prize winners will be picked perhaps Tuesday.

If every person in Appleton had to see all those posters in the high school corridors showing the most tempting of foods which will be obtainable at the auction, as the high school reporter does every morning, his hunger would become so acute by a week from Wednesday that he would be unable to know no bounds. Pools are being organized by various clubs and groups in the city to take part in this event which is the biggest thing the senior class does during the year.

Names are being taken by the various pools or groups of students already forming at the high school. In order to make the money come in large amounts and in order to handle the bidding of so many people, the students and the faculty form pools with each person giving a certain sum toward the funds of that group. A bidder and a treasurer are elected for each pool and the things obtained by that pool are divided among its contributors. Because of this system, individuals from town are unable to purchase anything alone in competition to the combined funds of their fellow bidders. Because Appleton people are lacking the enterprise and believe in the students working for others, city pools also are being formed.

INCREASE RAILROAD FARES IN AUSTRIA

By Associated Press Vienna—Railway rates in Austria were raised early this month, making them now 24 times what they were on August 1, 1922. Even with this heavy increase, it is estimated that the deficit still will be about 1,800,000,000 crowns a day.

The passenger deficit is said to be due largely to the enormous amount of free transportation, or so-called cost price fares, enjoyed by government servants. During the summer it was estimated that at least half the travel was of this class. So far the government has taken no steps toward abolishing the evil.

The next hearing of the proposed Zoning Ordinance will be held Friday evening, Nov. 24 at 7:30 P. M. at the Council Chambers. All persons interested are requested to be present. Chairman of Ordinance Committee

Writer Makes Appleton Resident Feel Glad He Is Not Big-City Dweller

Woolley Gives City Prominence In Saturday Evening Post Article Showing Worth Of Average Community

Appleton was paid more or less of a compliment by being one of two cities in Wisconsin and one of forty-one in the United States to be chosen as the source of information for an article entitled, "Small-Town Homes," written by Edward Mott Woolley for the Saturday evening Post, and appearing recently.

Mr. Woolley wrote the chamber of commerce sometime ago concerning housing conditions and living expenses here and he now uses the facts, with those compiled elsewhere, to show that the average person is better off economically by living in a city of 12,000 to 40,000 population than in New York, Chicago, or other exceedingly large places.

This writer now is planning on another article, which is expected to be a further defense of the smaller city. He has obtained from the chamber of commerce the names of several local men who either are in high-salaried positions, or owners or part owners of big business, and who started at the bottom in their home cities and worked their way up. His argument will be that it is possible to become wealthy without going to one of the country's biggest commercial centers.

Comparisons of wages of the average factory executive, factory clerk, bank clerk, stenographer and store clerk are made by the writer in his article and he shows that those who work in the 41 smaller cities earn about the same amounts as those in similar work in the larger cities. He compares living costs also and concludes that the person in the smaller place can live on much less, therefore is better off financially at the same wage as the big city man earns.

HOUSES CHEAPER

Mr. Woolley then goes into the home question, and here again he offers comforting arguments to the man of the small town. He shows how rents that are considered high in the 41 cities because of the housing shortage are well below those of similar locations in places like New York, and that the privilege of having an entire house at much less than an apartment house in the metropolis is one worth enjoying.

As to purchase of houses, he shows that one built by a widow in a small community at $3,000 for house and lot would cost $7,000 in the big city. Similarly, a home built by a lawyer in a small place for $6,800 would cost $15,000 to $20,000 in a corresponding situation in the larger location.

Even the place of 2,500 to 3,000 average population has its advantages, the writer explains. He showed how a grocer doing business in a small place near a large wholesale center could turn his goods many times a year and provide himself a good living—much more than the ordinary situations of the big city would offer those who are limited in capital and influence.

"You came here as a spy," she said with hot contempt. "You lied about your name; you lied about your purpose. You came here to betray Dad! If he'd known it he would have killed you!"

"Yes, he would have. But—do you know why I came here, Eve?" "He told you."

"And you are wrong. I didn't come here to betray Mike Clinch; I came to save him."

"Do you suppose I believe a man who has lied to Dad?" she cried. "I don't ask you, Eve. I shall let somebody else prove what I say. I don't blame you for your attitude. God knows I don't blame Mike Clinch. He stood up like a man to Henry Harrod."

All I ask is to undo some of the rotten things that my uncle did to you and yours. And that is partly why I came here."

"You said you were passionately 'Neither Dad nor I want anything from Harrod Place or from you. Do you suppose you can come here after Dad is dead and pretend you want to make amends for what your uncle did to us?'"

"Yes," said Darragh gravely. "I've made some amends already. You don't know it, but I have. You may not believe it, but I liked your father. He was a real man. Had anybody done to me what Henry Harrod did to your father I'd have been just as bitter as you are. I'd have hated him. I'd have hated where I chose. I'd have borne an implacable hatred against Henry Harrod and Harrod Place, and every soul in it."

The girl advanced, looked at him without a word.

"He said 'I am not surprised that you distrust what I say. But the man you are going to marry was a junior officer in my command. I have no closer friend than Jack Stormont. Ask him whether I am to be believed.'"

As she spoke the girl turned a flushed, incredulous face to Stormont.

"He said 'You may trust Darragh as you would trust me. I don't know what he has to say to you, but whatever he says will be the truth.'"

Darragh said gravely: "Through a misunderstanding, your father came into possession of stolen property. I do not know it, but I have been told. I did. But Mike Clinch would not have believed me if I had told him that the case of jewels in his possession had been stolen from a woman. Quintana stole them. By accident they came into your father's possession. I learned of this. I had promised this woman to recover her jewels."

"I came here for that purpose, Eve. And for two reasons: first, because I learned that Quintana also was coming here to rob your father of these gems; second, because when I knew your father, and know you, I concluded that it would be an outrage to let him go. It would mean prison for him, misery and ruin for you. So I tried to steal the jewels to save you both."

He looked at Stormont, who seemed astonished.

"To whom do these jewels belong, Jim?" demanded the Trooper.

"To the young Grand Duchess of Esthonia," said Darragh. "Do you remember that I befriended her over there?"

"Yes."

"Do you remember that the Reds were accused of burning her chalet and looting it?"

"Yes, I remember."

"Well, it was Quintana and his gang of international criminals who did that," said Darragh dryly.

And to Eve: "By accident this case of jewels, embellished with the arms of arms of the Grand Duchess of Esthonia, came into your father's possession. That is the story, Eve."

There was a silence. The girl looked at Stormont, flushed painfully, looked at Darragh.

Then, without a word, she turned, ascended the stairs, and reappeared immediately carrying the leather case.

"Thank you, Mr. Darragh," she said simply, and laid the case in his hand.

"But," said Darragh, "I want you to do a little more, Eve. The owner of these gems is my guest at Harrod Place. I want you to give them to her yourself."

"I—I can't go to Harrod Place," stammered the girl.

"Please don't visit the sins of Henry Harrod on me, Eve."

"I don't. But—but that place—"

After a silence, "If Eve feels that way," began Stormont awkwardly. "I couldn't become associated with you in business, Jim."

"I'd rather sell Harrod Place than lose you!" retorted Darragh almost sharply. "I want to go into business with you, Jack—if Eve will permit me—"

She stood looking at Stormont, the heightened color playing in her cheeks as she began to comprehend the comradeship between these two men.

Slowly she turned to Darragh, offered her hand.

"I'll go to Harrod Place," she said in a low voice.

Darragh's quick smile brightened the somber gravity of his face.

"Eve," he said, "when I came over here this morning from Harrod Place I was afraid you would refuse to listen to me. I was afraid you would not even see me. And so I brought with me—somebody—to whom I felt certain you would listen."

I brought with me a young girl—a poor refugee from Russia, once wealthy, today almost penniless. Her name is Theodora. Once she was Grand Duchess of Esthonia. But this morning a clerkman from Five Lakes changed her name. Jack she is Rieca Darragh now, and she's having a wonderful time on her new snowshoes."

He took Eve by one hand and Stormont by the other, and drew them to the kitchen door and kicked it open.

Through the swirling snow, over on the lakeside at the timber edge, a graceful, boyish figure in scarlet and white wool moved swiftly over the drifts with all the naive delight of a child with a brand new toy.

All aglow and a trifle breathless, she met Darragh just beyond the veranda, rested one mittened hand on his shoulder while he lifted and unbuttoned her snowshoes, stepped lightly from them, and came forward to Eve with outstretched hand and a blinding winning grin in her lovely face.

"We shall be friends, surely," she said in her quick, winning voice. "Because my husband has told me—and I am so grateful for you—and I need a girl friend."

Holding both Eve's hands, her mittens dangling from her wrists, she looked into her eyes very steadily.

Slowly Eve's eyes filled more slowly. Rieca kissed her on both cheeks, framed her face in both hands, and kissed her slightly on the lips.

Then, still holding Eve's hands, she turned and looked at Stormont.

"I remember you now," she said. "You were with my husband in Riga." She freed her right hand and held it out to Stormont. He had the grace to kiss it and did it very well for a Yankee.

Together they entered the kitchen door, and turned into the dining room on the left, where were chairs around the plain pine table.

Darragh said: "The new mistress of Harrod Place has selected your quarters, Eve. They adjoin the quarters of her friend, the Countess Orloff Strelitz."

"Valentine begged me," said Rieca, smiling. "She is going to be lonely without me. All hours of day and night we were trotting into one another's rooms." She looked gravely at Eve. "You will like Valentine and she will like you very much. As for me—I already love you."

She put one arm around Eve's shoulder. "How could you even think of remaining here all alone? Why, I should never close my eyes for thinking of you, dear."

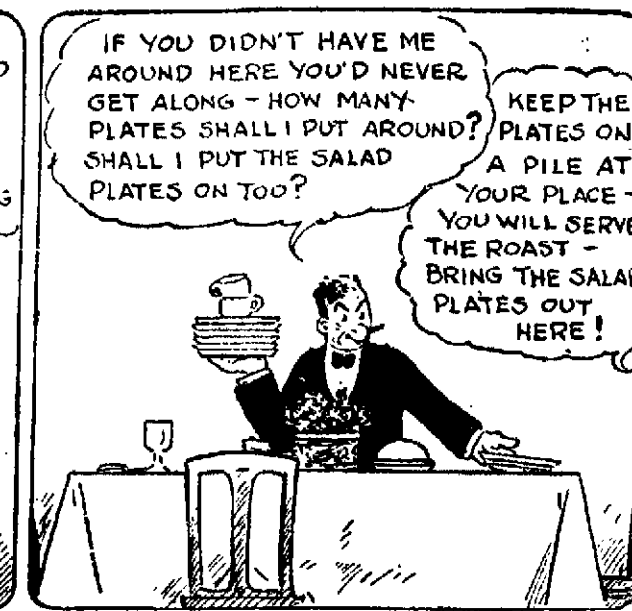

Eve's head dropped; she said in a stifled voice: "I'll go with you. I want to. . . I'm very tired."

"We had better go now," said Darragh. "Your things can be brought over later. If you'll dress for snowshoeing, Jack can pack what clothes you need. Are there snowshoes for him, too?"

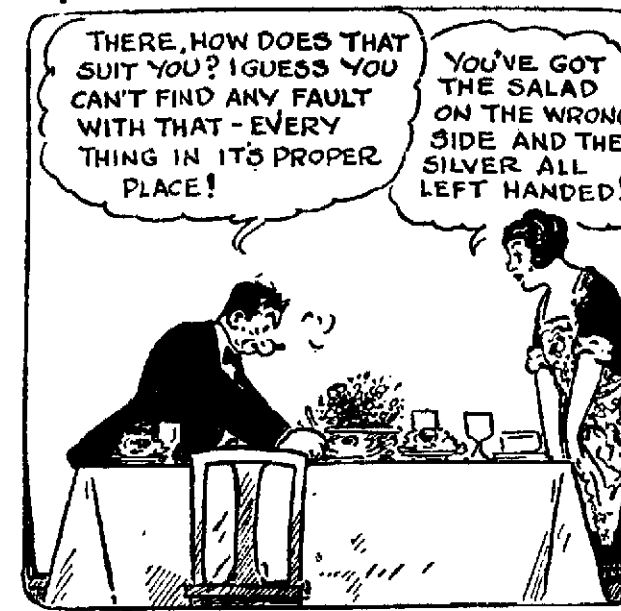

Eve turned tragically to her lover. "To Dad's closet," she said, choking; then turned and went up the stairs, still clinging to Rieca's hand and drawing her with her.

Wise Women Exercise To Keep Beauty

Perfect Health Is First Requisite For Beauty Of Face And Figure

Modern beauty culturists fully realize that a woman cannot hope to attain real beauty without first securing perfect health. Health must go hand in hand with beauty if the latter is to prove really attractive, and both medical men and beauty culturists are agreed that to gain and maintain perfect health, exercise, of a suitable kind and amount, is an absolute necessity.

SKIP FOR THE HEALTH
The woman who thinks that by leading an "armchair" life and barring all forms of strenuous exercise, even walking—as so many do—she is warding off the appearance of middle age, is very much mistaken. A woman with such views invariably ages far more rapidly than one who takes an intelligent interest in games, sports, and everything that is going on around her, for by adopting the "armchair" attitude towards life she allows her mind to rust and her muscles to become sagged, and so loses that joy of living which is one of the surest signs of real youth.

For the woman who has passed into her late thirties the two most beneficial forms of exercise are walking and skipping. Both of these, by bringing all the muscles of the body into play, keep the figure slim and supple, preventing the much-dreaded "middle age spread" and making the step light and elastic. To devote 10 minutes to skipping every morning is the surest way of putting a check on old Father Time, and although at first it may not be easy for the woman who is probably growing a little stiff through lack of exercise to practice skipping she will soon make progress and become much more active, and she will not only look and feel years younger, but the better both physically and mentally for the exercise.

RAINY DAYS CLEAR SKIN

For health as well as for beauty an hour's walk every day is essential, and it is well to remember that sunbathing about shop-gazing cannot be classed as walking for exercise. Never omit your daily walk because the weather is not all that one might wish, for to walk in the rain will do no harm provided one is suitably clad. Many beauty culturists even believe that the humid atmosphere of a rainy day is beneficial to the complexion, making it soft and clear.

TESTED RECIPES

SOUTHERN SWEET POTATOES

By Bertha E. Shapleigh

- 6 medium sized sweet potatoes
- 6 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/4 cup cold water

Wash, pare and cut potatoes into strips lengthwise as for French fried potatoes.

In a casserole or earthen baking dish place a layer of potatoes, cover with bits of butter and brown sugar, repeat until the potatoes, butter and sugar have been used.

Mix salt and cinnamon with the water and pour over the potatoes. Cover and bake slowly two hours, basting frequently with the liquid in dish.

FRENCH TOAST

This method of making toast is very good when serving it for luncheon or supper. It is nourishing, "tasty" and always enjoyed by the children.

For six slices of bread which is stale but not hard, use one cup of milk and two eggs, slightly beaten with one-fourth teaspoon salt and two teaspoons sugar. Dip bread in the egg and milk, allowing it to remain long enough to soften but not break.

Have ready a frying pan with some melted butter in it; fry the bread in the butter, slowly, so that the egg takes on the very light brown which is so much prettier, and also better tasting, than the dark brown color.

Serve the bread at once, spreading each slice with jelly or marmalade.

DRESS HINTS

FASHIONABLE HOSIERY

This season it is not necessary to match one's slippers and hosiery for evening. Delicate-toned hosiery is worn not only with the gold and silver metal cloth slippers, but with black satin ones as well.

FINE EMBROIDERY

The embroidery seen on the new frocks for spring is done in fine thread in very small, fine designs. This is an important detail on many of the smartest creations.

RIBBON SASHES

Ribbon sashes are seen in varied styles this season. Those finished with picot edges of the same color, or of contrasting colors, are frequently seen.

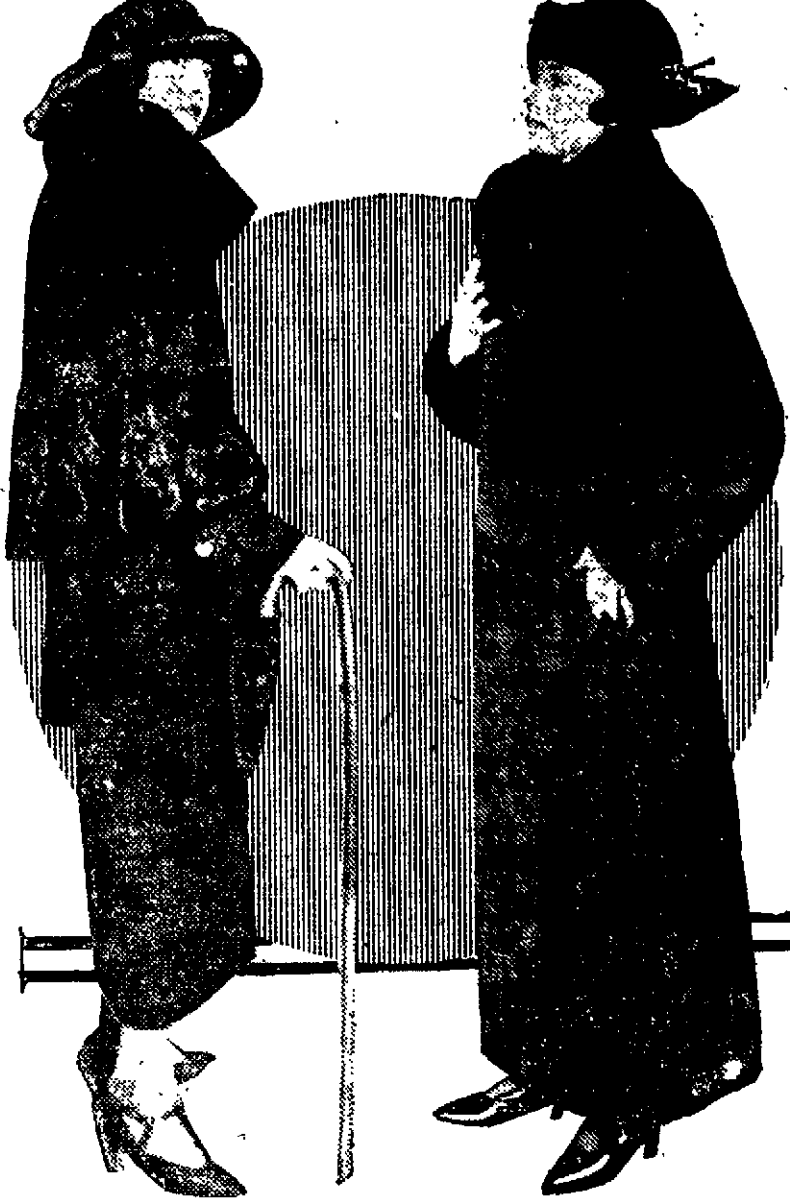

HIGHER WAISTLINES

New sport dresses from Paris show a higher waistline than the one to which we have become accustomed. Many of the one-piece dresses are made princess style and have no belts at all. The waistline is indicated by embroidery or trimming.

CAPE COAT FOR YOUTH

Correct Incorrect

Youth is a fleeting thing at best, and should be detained as long as possible.

So why should a young woman, with a slim, girlish figure, conceal it under a long, straight, square-cut coat, that disguises instead of expressing her most priceless quality?

The little cape coat is just as young as the other model is middle-aged. The lines are slender and intriguing, and the whole effect is that of chic and smartness.

It's just as easy to get the one coat as the other, and there is practically no difference in price.

Honeymooner's Abroad

Chapter 6 — Seign Naples

By Zoe Beckley

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JACK DUYREA, with his bride, EDNA, has been sent by his employers to Europe to investigate secretly the suspected intrigues of the firm's foreign representatives, COUSINS. Thus Jack expects to mix business with his honeymoon. Arriving at Naples, Jack and his bride see Cousins coming in a revenue cutter to meet them.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

One of the first to set foot on board the Roma was Monsieur Cousins. Sighting Jack he rushed forward, arms extended, face alight, dramatic welcome in his manner. He seized Jack's hands and almost kissed him. "My dear Meester Duryea! And see these—"

"My wife," Jack presented. Cousins with expert gallantry kissed both her hands.

"I am charmed, charmed beyond words! And on your honeymoons—ah, how happy you shall be! I, Cousins, your humble friend, know this Europe like my own hand and all its offerings of pleasure. I have everything planned out for you. Do not bother your heads in the least. It is all arranged. Come!"

Almost literally he rushed them off their feet. He seemed to have lubricated every possible wheel. Their baggage was rushed through the customs.

Their landing was expedited and they found themselves on the picturesque quay, their ears dinned with clamor of rival drivers of flea-bitten horse-drawn street cabs.

Cousins shouldered a path through the constabulary hackmen and led the Duryeas to a big, new, shining green motor, a liveried chauffeur at the wheel—the only car in the motley collection of vehicles.

"Your bridal chariot," Cousins bragged as they were whisked through the crookedest, most peopled, most colorful, noisiest and by turns the most picturesquely filthy streets conceivable.

Edna was so thrilled with the color and beggary, the strident noise and the brooding poetry of the scenes through which she was passing that she found no time to wonder where the splendid "bridal chariot" came from.

But when she turned to her husband to share with him the excitement of a steep street in which a riot of flowers in baskets, clashed with another riot of colored rags of devil-may-care poverty she saw his thoughts were less on the scenes about him than on their guide.

"You shall see," Cousins was saying. "You shall thrill! We go to the Bertolini Palace Hotel, where I live, where I have a suite for you, where you look from the mountain top down on Naples and the bay and Vesuvius!"

"This afternoon we ride through the city. Tonight the opera. Tomorrow Capri. Wednesday Amalfi and Sorrento. The next day Pompeii and Mount Vesuvius. The day after we leave for Rome!"

Jack cleared his throat.

"We may have to leave room for a day in our Naples office," he said. "I certainly can't leave without a good look at our business here, can I?"

A quick change came over Cousins' face. The suaveness of velvet in his manner for a moment changed to something hard like steel.

"Ah, perhaps," he evaded. "If this so miserable strike is over by then! I am desolate, M. Duryea—but our Naples office at this moment is closed. There is a strike on there!"

Adventures Of The Twins

Flap-Doodle Caught

Everywhere the Twins went they asked the same question. "Do you know where Flap-Doodle is?" Flap-Doodle stole the Fairy Queen's wand and we're hunting for it."

But they always got the same answer from the queer Tinky Winklers. The Tinky-Winklers were orange-colored fairies on the Tinky-Winkle Star.

"No, we're hunting for him ourselves," they said.

Each had a complaint to make for since Flap-Doodle had got hold of the magic wand, he was doing awful things with it.

One Tinky-Winkler said Flap-Doodle, with one single stroke of his wand, had turned all his dinner plates into pancakes.

Another Tinky-Winkler said he had turned his nice spotted cow into a crocodile.

Another told the Twins Flap-Doodle had turned his chickens into egg-plants.

But what made everybody angrier than anything was what he did to the Tinky-Winkle Star itself. You know it was flat like a coffee saucer, with the edges turned up.

Flap-Doodle took the magic wand and turned the edges down, my dears, and folks had a dreadful time to keep from sliding off.

Nancy and Nick, even with their Green shoes, kept slipping and slipping, and several times they almost tumbled down to earth again.

After while they came to a house and knocked on the front door.

"Come in!" said a voice.

The Twins nearly fell over with surprise when they entered. For there sat Flap-Doodle himself in a rocking chair, fanning himself calmly with a frying-pan.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

Wales remains true to many of the old Anglo-Saxon marriage customs, particularly the one which prescribes an impressive escort for the bride. Often a bride's entire circle of friends will attend her, making a procession of 50 or more. The wedding party always halts at the door of the church where the marriage ceremony is solemnized. After the marriage the guests enter the church for music and another special ceremony.

False Hair Business Booms As Bobbed Heads Get Gate From Fashion

Flappers Who Clipped Locks Cannot Wait For Hair To Grow When Bobs Are Declared Out Of Style

BY MARIAN HALE

Some prices may have come down, according to statistics and market reports, but one commodity has gone sky high within the last few months—false hair.

And the most overworked class today are those employed in the transformation and switch business. All because the bobbed girls simply won't wait for their hair to grow out. "They are resorting to all sorts of artifices, even to wigs, to give the appearance of a luxuriant crop of hair," says A. Simonson, the New York hairdresser. "The rush for made-to-order coiffure is amazing."

"To make a transformation of the average length, at least 12 peasant women of Central Europe have to sacrifice their hair," he continued. "Because American women insist on having the hair in these transformations the same lengths all over, though it never grows that way on the human head."

WIGMAKERS RUSHED

"The fastest wigmakers cannot complete one of the more elaborate transformations in less than 10 days. Each hair has to be knotted into the frame by hand. Matching the natural hair of those who want a temporary addition is an art in itself. It requires blending of from four to five different shades. Red and mouse-colored hair are hardest to match."

"Keeping the new false locks together is no small problem. It is calling forth a bewildering array of combs and a elaborate nets for the coming season.

"It would indeed be a tragedy to have one's coiffure drop off in the middle of a dance or be sent skyward in a severe wind. So combs that assure the safety of the false pieces, and bandeaux which have a restraining influence, are greatly favored."

"Czechoslovakia is lending a helping hand in meeting the problem. From that picturesque middle European country have come the coarse woven gold and silver colored nets which enable the bobbed-haired girl to achieve the effect of long hair without a switch, provided she is clever about curling her hair."

These nets are made in varying styles, ranging from those which entirely envelop the coiffure to dainty little semi-nets which are worn simply to hold the back knot in place.

Peasant women have worn these for centuries to keep their hair from falling down as they bend over their work.

Many girls are curling their short locks, brushing them up and winding a long switch tightly about the hairline to get the effect of a high coiffure.

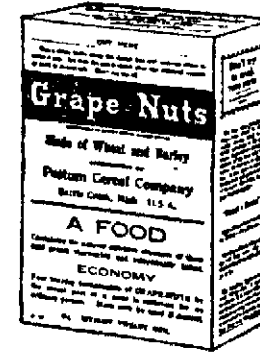

Many intelligent mothers overlook these few simple facts about food—

EVERY mother interested in her children's welfare meets a problem in the proper feeding of her boys and girls.

Parents often do not realize the evil effects of mal-nutrition; and that care in the selection of food will avoid a large percentage of children's ills.

One of the best of all foods for providing proper nourishment for growing boys and girls is Grape-Nuts—made of whole wheat flour and malted barley, and scientifically baked for twenty hours. This long baking brings out a delicious flavor, makes the food easy to digest—without fermentation. Grape-Nuts with milk or cream is a complete food.

Here is a suggestion for better health: Serve Grape-Nuts as often as the folks wish it.

Another Field, Sacred To Men, Open To Women

Terre Haute, Ind.—Another industry which, until recently had been left to man alone to exploit has given up to woman.

The industry is steel. The woman is Mrs. Jean Shassere of this city. Mrs. Shassere is the first steel saleswoman in the country, she modestly admits. Until she began selling structural steel less than a year ago for a big Chicago firm, this field was the happy hunting ground for man alone.

When the Terre Haute woman found herself alone with two adolescent children to support, she began casting about for a business that would yield her a living. Steel was suggested to her and she began studying the business.

A Chicago firm started her off and now she represents three other large concerns, each handling different steel products.

IF YOU ARE WELL BRED

You are careful to observe the etiquette of the theater. If you have occasion to ask the woman sitting in front of you to remove her hat you word your request in the most polite terms.

The first note from the orchestra should be the signal for quiet. If you arrive during the overture, or after the performance has begun, you should be careful to see that your chair is not clattered or allowed to drop noisily. Of course, you do not rustle your program.

Apaches Take Three 'Scalps,' Menominees Are Victims On Alleys

Monday Night Elk Ten Pin Teams Continue To Topple Maples With Zest

The Apaches lived up to their name as "scalp" getters Monday night when they wrestled three straight games from the Menominees in the regular match games of the Monday night league on the Elk Alley. The Apaches didn't have any trouble winning the games. The only danger was offered by Weber of the Menominees, who rolled 187, 168 and 184 and led the rest of the ten pin knights of the evening with 549 pins.

The Stockbridge team took two games from the Chippewas. The Flambeaus did the same trick to the Innes.

ROD AND REEL

By Dixie Carroll

MORE ABOUT THE CANOE

For portaging the canoe by the one-man power the two paddles must be secured to the thwart. A piece of rawhide or strong twine should be attached to the thwarts and adjusted so that the paddles can be slipped in and out with ease and still be securely held when needed. The blades of the paddles rest on the forward thwart with the handles on the rear one and the blades should be far enough apart so that they rest on the shoulders without cramping the tendons of the neck. The front thwart rests on the neck and the head extends up between the ends of the paddles. To ease up the weight a bit you will find that a wooden chair or tacker padded on the shoulders will take a bit of the curse off the job.

For two fellows two weeks in the woods the entire outfit can be carried in two large pack sacks, while for the same trip, if duffle bags are used, four will be required. The pack sacks, of course, come with the shoulder straps, and the kind best suited for the game also have a head strap. In packing the duffle bags, the trundle line or head strap is generally used, two or three of the duffle bags being hunched and the trundle line attached. This carry is entirely made with the head and unless a fellow is experienced in running rapids or fast water the stern man has control of the canoe and the bow man should keep out of the steering game and not try to ward the bow off rocks, unless it is certain that the stern man has lost control. As a general thing, back-paddle a bit so that the current runs swifter than the canoe. Keep out of the main current if you can find an easier passage and always give the rapids the once over from the shore before you ride them. Follow the passage of the current and in passing one of these innocent-looking affairs, the current will usually carry the bow to one side and clear the rock, then it is up to the stern man to back the stern clear. If you find a well-worn trail above a bit of rough water you can figure that many a good fellow at the paddle has portaged and it will probably save you time and wetting to follow the dope of the gang that have gone before. MARINE TRAFFIC AT HAMBURG SHOWS INCREASE

By Associated Press
Hamburg—Of Europe's three largest ports, Hamburg was the only one in 1922 to show a gain over last year in the number of incoming ships during the first seven months. The other two harbors, Antwerp and Rotterdam, registered an increase in arriving tonnage, although less ships docked than during the same period in 1921.

BEATRICE COMES HERE TO PUT LID ON GRID SEASON

Powerful Nebraska Outfit Plays High School On Turkey Day

Still smarting under the whipping it received at East Green Bay Saturday afternoon, Appleton high school football squad on Tuesday was to begin its workouts for the final game of the season with the Beatrice, Neb., high school at Lawrence field on Thanksgiving day. Fisher, who broke a rib in the Green Bay melee, probably will not be able to play against the Nebraskaans.

Coach Denney is trying to remedy defects in the high school defense which permitted the Paymen to pile up 21 points last Saturday. The heavy Bay line crashed through the Appleton forwards far too easily to make the mentor optimistic of success when the fast and heavy Nebraska team takes the field.

Beatrice won from Appleton last year 25 to 0, largely because of the dazzling passing game of the westerners and because the Blue and Orange squad lacked the necessary punch in critical moments. Appleton threatened the Beatrice goal often enough to win the game but the big drive was not there.

Denney will concentrate his defense on Purdy, the sensational Beatrice quarterback who is said to be one of the best high school players in the United States. He has terrorized the state of Nebraska with his brilliant work, leading his team to victory over many schools rated much stronger than the Beatrice outfit.

The Thanksgiving day game is the feature event of the season in Appleton is the only high school in the Fox River valley to play an inter-sectional game this year and it is believed fans from Green Bay to Fond du Lac will be interested in the struggle.

PRINCESS CANDY CONTINUES CLIMB

The Princess Candy team is making a strong bid for the Olympic league leadership and took a big stride in that direction by winning three straight games from the Bohl and Maeser quintet.

Dr. Otto Dumke broke into the limelight when he toppled over 257 pins in the second game. This is one of the highest scores rolled this year in Appleton. Dr. Dumke led the bowlers with 614 pins. William Groth of the Bohl and Maeser quintet scored for his aggregation.

Planning To Defeat Army

Coach Bob Powell is now pointing the Navy for the big game of the year, the battle with the Army.

The annual clash between Appleton and West Point will be staged at Philadelphia, Nov. 25. The new stadium of the University of Pennsylvania will furnish the setting rather than the Polo Grounds at New York.

While the showing of the Navy against Pennsylvania, which resulted in an unexpected defeat, was a great disappointment, the victory over Penn State helped considerably.

The Navy has a great team, and in Steve Barchet one of the best backs in the country. Barchet was out of the Penn game and he was badly missed. Powell's star back is a triple threat man and carries the punch of the team. In McKee he has a fine running mate.

Beloiters Let Beards Grow For Ripon Game

Beit—It'll be a bristly bunch of rosters that will go from Beit on Saturday to the Ripon-Beloit state title match at Rockford. Beitoi college men on Monday are singing away their shaving rights until Sunday morning.

"Everybody lets his beard grow until Sunday after the Ripon game," they said. "Any man that uses a razor goes in the tub every morning at 5 o'clock, and every razor goes in the safe for the week." Beitoi fans figure that a bearded team will throw the Ripon ranks into confusion, as the foe will forget their football and indulge in a game of heaver every time a Beitoi back goes through the line.

The Dader students voted no dates for the weekend, but the coeds won't object to their edict when the manly growth sprouts.

Lawrence Has Host Of Basketeers, Who Will Get Started Next Week

Many Regulars As Well As New Men Will Seek Place On Quintet—"Get Beloit And State Championship" Is Aim

With the dust of the gridiron hardly settled after one of the most successful football wars at Lawrence, college athletes are beginning to clear the stage for the next attraction—basketball.

Prospects for the coming cage season are bright. At least four of last year's regulars will be back with the quintet while a host of new material is of a promising caliber.

PRACTICE NEXT WEEK

Coach H. D. McChesney announced Tuesday that practice will begin Monday of next week and the first of the Little Five Conference games will be staged Jan. 12 although some preliminary games probably will be played before that.

The following is the Lawrence Little Five schedule:

Jan. 12—Lawrence at Ripon.
Jan. 19—Carroll at Appleton.
Feb. 2—Lawrence at Beloit.
Feb. 8—Beloit at Appleton.
Feb. 16—Ripon at Appleton.
Feb. 23—Carroll at Waukesha.

There are fifteen or more candidates who seek to make good on the Lawrence team. Among the "regulars" are Myrtle Basing, football star and this year's captain. Basing will play either at center or guard. This will be his third year as a cager. "Bill" Smith, also a Lawrence footballer, is certain to make the quintet as a forward. He held that position for two years.

OTHERS SEEK POSTS

Roger Collinge, forward of last year, will again be out for practice and so will Ray Collins who played last year. Collins is a good man either at center or as a forward. Kuhlitz, forward, also will seek a berth on the team. Among last year's subs who may get on the team are Cook, Boehm, Gebhardt and DeGeorge.

Of the new men in school, five stand out most prominently. They are Sears, who it is reported played a whale of a game at University of Colorado as center; Grover, Racine high school star, also a center; Kotal, quarterback of the football squad and who did some good caging at the University of Illinois; Christoff, Neenah high school star guard and Jacobson, former Appleton high school forward star.

With this wealth of material it is certain that Coach McChesney will have time to make a decision and it will mean so much more work for the candidates. It is quite possible that the new men will outshine some of last year's stars.

Lawrence's principal aim will be to cop the basketball title. Last year it won all but the Beloit game and the latter school quintet as the result, walked away with the state interscholastic title. "Get Beloit and you'll get the title," will be the war cry of the basketeers this winter.

Coach McChesney said several schools are seeking preliminary games. Among them is Stevens Point normal which is hankering a little more than the rest of them to get a crack at the bigger schools. All home games will be played in the Armory, it was announced.

Appleton Cagers Sign Seven Games

The Appleton Aces, organized by Leslie Holzer this month to succeed the professional cagers of this city of last winter, will begin playing next week, according to an announcement made by Manager Holzer.

The first game will be played at Neenah with the Neenah Post on Nov. 30, Turkey day. A schedule is being completed by Manager Holzer and includes games at Hilbert, Dec. 1; at Neopit, Dec. 15; at Hortonville, Dec. 29, at Fond du Lac, Dec. 30 and at Manitowish, Jan. 4.

Among the men already signed with the Aces are Kubit, Loose, Kenney, Anderson, Fahstroom, and Zussman.

SPORT VIEWS AND NEWS

The football war isn't quite over despite the fact that Lawrence has completed its schedule. But this time it's a war of words.

Reports had Monday that Beloit did so will protest Lawrence's claims to the Little Five conference title. Beloit asserts, its followers in Appleton declare that should Beloit win from Ripon the Little Five title will be between Beloit and Lawrence. Lawrence, however, will protest this claim on its strength of having played more Little Five games than Beloit scheduled and that it outplayed Beloit.

Not only is the Little Five war continued but the Midwest conference championship is hanging in the air because of Coe's victory over Cornell last Saturday.

Curators that Lawrence has challenged Coe and Beloit for a post-season game were denied by Coach H. D. McChesney.

"I see no reason for challenging Beloit. We beat them once this year by outplaying them," said the grid men. "However, we would like nothing better than to get another crack at Beloit. If they wish to play us we will be glad to go to Beloit again or play it in any city they choose. We would be glad to have them in Appleton."

WISCONSIN HOPES TO RUIN RECORD OF CHICAGO MAROONS

Badgers Priming For Hard Battle On Home Gridiron Of Undefeated Suckers

By Associated Press
Madison—All thought of a standing among the leaders of the Big Ten conference shattered by defeat at the hands of Illinois and Michigan, the Wisconsin football team faced another big job Monday. It turned to training for the Chicago contest to be played Saturday on the home gridiron of the undefeatable Maroons.

Michigan took the Badgers down the road to a 13 to 6 defeat on last Saturday by romping over the invading Wisconsin eleven during the second half of play, after the two teams had fought a scoreless tie in the first two periods. Capt. Rollie Williams saved his team from a shutout when he rallied its force in the closing minutes of play and by his own brilliancy got the ball across the Michigan goal line for Wisconsin's only score.

Despite their defeat the Badgers are priming to the utmost for the Chicago game Saturday. This chance for a victory will be taken advantage of in an effort to retrieve past losses and put the Maroons out of running for the conference championship which now lies between Michigan and Iowa, and Chicago, all three undefeated.

Wisconsin expects to again be at its full strength when it clashes with Chicago in the final game of the season.

YE FISHING AND HUNTING COLUMN

By M. J. V. Fose

"PLANT A BASS"

A campaign started by R. F. Wilder in the Isaac Walton League Monthly has taken the "fishing brethren" by storm and undoubtedly will become a slogan to anglers from coast to coast.

If anglers who have been lamenting the marvelous fishing of "years gone by" would only do their utmost to improve the present fishing by "planting a bass" in their own home waters, undoubtedly in a few years we would soon see the return of good fishing in all waters again.

This campaign does not necessarily mean that every angler should plant a "can of fingerlings or fry" in their home waters, but for those that want to do so the fry can be easily obtained. All one has to do is to write to the Department of Commerce, Bureau of Fisheries, Washington, D. C., for an application blank, fill this blank out properly and forward it to his United States senator or representative in congress for endorsement. Upon endorsement, which is never refused, the Bureau of Fisheries will deliver the can of fry at the applicant's nearest railroad station, free of expense and even will telegraph the applicant when to expect them. Simple, isn't it?

Then too, there's another way for the angler to "plant a bass" and that is the simple way, too. How it is: "When you catch an undersized fish, whether Black bass, pike or pickerel, wet your hands before removing the 'little fellow' from the hook and, do this with great care so as not to injure him any more than is necessary; return the 'little fellow' to the water and 'let him grow up' to give you another thrill when he has more strength.

Another good suggestion in regard to improving fishing is for every angler to "take the fish he can use and return it to waters for another day's sport and he should stop 'supplying your neighbor or some friend.' Why not do that neighbor or friend a favor and let him get out in God's glorious sunshine and get some fresh air and a little thrill too, if he wants a mess of fish.

Anglers everywhere are awakening to the fact that unless something is done to restock the many "fishin' holes" of days gone by this sport will soon vanish and our little boys and girls will never have the pleasure of reeling in a nice bass or musky."

"Let's start right, next season and 'plant a bass' or two every time we have a 'good day.'"

ing better than get another crack at Beloit. If they wish to play us we will be glad to go to Beloit again or play it in any city they choose. We would be glad to have them in Appleton."

"However, it isn't Beloit that concerns me. Coe is really the only undefeated Midwest conference team and if that college desires to test us for the laurels we would like nothing better."

He Stole March
On Farmer With Sharpened Axe

What's the use? He hadn't a friend in the world. No one had respect for his age. Having outlived his usefulness, he was to be executed on Thanksgiving day.

Rather than endure the shame, "Pat," the barnyard cook of a Grand Chute farmer, determined to elude his captors by committing suicide. He flew up into a tree and suspended himself between two limbs. A few moments, and all was over.

SISTER, 4, SHOTS LAD, 9:
NEIGHBORS DEAF TO PLEA

By Associated Press
Rice Lake, Wis.,—Frank Zyk, 9, stepson of John Kurek, Lehigh, Wis., farmer, is at the Barron hospital recovering from a serious gunshot wound inflicted by his 4-year-old sister Mary, at their home. Mrs. Kurek was ill in the hospital at Barron and Mr. Kurek was at Rice Lake on business when the accident occurred. An older brother John, who is 18, was preparing to go hunting and had placed the gun in reach of the little girl. Pointing it at her brother from behind the discharged the weapon, the charge penetrating the left side just below the knee of the left leg. The older brother ran three miles to Lehigh for help but his plea to residents there was answered by the opinion that the boy had better be left until morning when they would take him to a hospital if living. The boy then applied to hunters in the vicinity who hurried to the farm home with an automobile and carried the injured boy to Barron.

"TIGER" TO DELIVER
FIRST TALK TONIGHT

By Associated Press
New York — Georges Clemenceau, France's war time premier, will deliver his first address to the American people Tuesday night. He will talk extemporaneously although he has spent much of his time since arriving in the United States gathering material for use in the speech.

Clemenceau was exhausted Monday night when he retired after a strenuous day which began at 5 and ended shortly before 8 at night. He leaned heavily on the rail as he climbed the stairway to his third floor apartment in the home of Charles Dana Gibson and he did not join the Gibsons at dinner, but had a light meal sent to his room.

Speaking without notes, as he will, Clemenceau may talk for two hours if he finds an interested audience and is able to make himself understood in the great auditorium of the Metropolitan Opera house Tuesday night.

He offered 1,618 boxes of cheese of the Farmers call board here Monday, Nov. 20. Sales:

PASS MARINE
BILL, HARDING
TO CONGRESSAlso Urges Greater Aid To Farmers In Address To Congress

so enormous a treasury loss is the inevitable outcome. This loss, moreover, attends operation of less than a third of the government owned fleet. It is not therefore, a question of adding new treasury burdens to maintain our shipping. We are paying these burdens now. It is not a question of contracting an outlay to support our merchant shipping because we are paying already. I am not asking your authorization of a new and added draft on the public treasury. I am appealing for a program to diminish the burden we are already bearing.

When your executive government knows of public expenditures aggregating fifty millions annually, which it believes could be reduced by half through a change of policy, your government would be unworthy of public trust if such a change were not commended, if it were not insistently urged.

And the pity of it is that our present expenditure in losses is not constructive. It looks to no future attainment. It is utterly ineffective in the establishment of a dependable merchant marine, whereas the encouragement of private ownership and the application of individual initiative would make for a permanent creation, ready and answerable at all times to the needs of the nation. But I have not properly prepared all the current losses to the public this year. We are wearing out our ships without any provision for replacement. We are heaving these losses through deterioration now, and are charging nothing against our capital account. But the losses are there and regrettably larger under government operation than under private control. Only a few years of continued losses on capital account will make these losses through depreciation alone exceed the fifty millions a year now drawn to cover losses in operation.

CREATION OF WAR

The gloomy picture of losses does not end even there. Notwithstanding the known war cost in three billions of dollars for the present tonnage I will not venture to appraise its cash value today. It may as well be confessed now as at some later time that in the mad rush to build, in establishing shipyards wherever men would organize to expand government money when we made shipbuilders overnight quite without regard to previous occupation or pursuits, we built poorly. Moreover, we constructed without any formulated program for a merchant marine. The war emergency impelled and the cry was for ships, any kind of ships. The error is recalled in regret rather than criticism. The point is that our fleet costing approximately three billions, is worth only a fraction of that cost today. Whatever that fraction may be the truth remains that we have no market in which to sell the ships under our present policy and a program of surrender and sacrifice, and the liquidation which is inevitable unless the pending legislation is sanctioned with cost scores of millions more.

When the question is asked, why the insistence for the merchant marine act now? The answer is apparent. Waiving every inspiration which lies in a constructive plan for maintaining our flag on the commercial highways of the seas waiting the prudence in safeguarding against another $3,000,000,000 madness if war ever again befalls, we have the undeniable fact of wiping out a $30,000,000 annual loss in operation and losses aggregating many hundreds of millions in worn out, sacrificed, or scrapped shipping. Then the supreme humiliation, the admission that the United States — our America, once eminent among the maritime nations of the world, is incapable of asserting itself in the peace triumphs on the seas of the world. It would seem to me doubly humiliating when we own the ships and fail in the genius and capacity to turn their prowess toward the marits of the world.

This problem cannot longer be ignored, its attempted solution cannot longer be postponed. The failure of congress to act decisively will be no less disastrous than adverse action.

CHOICE OF THREE

The first is constructive—enact the pending bill under which I firmly believe an American merchant marine, privately owned and privately operated, but serving all the people and always available to the government in any emergency, may be established and maintained.

The second is obstructive—continue government operation and attending government losses and government private enterprise government competition under which losses are met by the public treasury.

The third is destructive—involving the sacrifice of our ships abroad or the scrapping of them at home, the surrender of our aspirations and the confession of our impotence to the world in general and our humiliation before the competing world in particular.

A choice among the three is inevitable. It is unbelievable that the American people or the congress which expresses their power will consent to surrender and destruction. It is equally unbelievable that our people and the congress which translates their wishes into action will longer sustain a program of obstruction and attending losses to the treasury.

I have come to urge the constructive alternative to reassert and an American "we will." I have come to ask you to relieve the responsible administrative branch of the government from a program upon which failure and hopelessness and staggering losses are written for every page, and let us turn to a program of assured shipping to serve us in war and to give guaranty to our commercial independence in peace.

I know full well the hostility in the popular mind to the word "subsidy." It is stressed by the opposition and associated with "special privileges" by those who are unfailing advocates of government aid whenever vast numbers are directly concerned. "Government aid" would be a fairer term than "subsidy" in defining what we are seeking to do for our merchant marine, and the interests are those of all the people even though the aid goes to the few who serve.

"PREJUDICED TERM"

If government aid is a fair term—and I think it is—to apply to authorizations aggregating $75,000,000,000 to promote good roads for market highways, it is equally fit to be applied to the establishment and maintenance of American market highways on the salted seas. If government aid is the proper definition for fifteen to forty millions annually expended to improve and maintain inland waterways in aid of commerce, it is proper designation for a needed assistance to establish and maintain ocean highways where there is actual commerce to be carried.

"But call it subsidy since there are those who prefer to appeal to mistaken prejudice rather than make frank and logical argument. We might so call the annual loss of fifty millions which we are paying now without protest by those who most oppose it. Might as well call that a 'subsidy.' If so I am proposing to cut in half approximately and to the saving thus affected there would be added millions upon millions of further savings through ending losses on capital account—government capital out of the public treasury, always remember—and there would be at least the promise and the prospect of the permanent establishment of the needed merchant marine.

I challenge every insinuation of favored interests and the enrichment of the special few at the expense of the public treasury. I am, first of all, appealing to save the treasury. Perhaps the unlimited bestowal of government aid might justify the apprehension of special favoring but the pending bill, the first ever proposed which carried such a provision automatically guards against enrichment or perpetuation bestowal. It provides that shipping lines receiving government aid must have their actual investment and their operating expenses audited by the government that government aid will be paid until the shipping enterprise earns 10 per cent on actual capital employed and immediately that when more than 10 per cent earnings is reached, half of the excess earnings must be applied to the repayment of the government aid which has been previously advanced. Thus the possible earnings are limited to a very reasonable amount if capital is to be risked and management is to be attracted. If success attends as we hope it will, the government outlay is returned, the inspiration of opportunity to earn remains and American transportation by sea is established.

Though differing in detail, it is not more in proportion to their population and capacity than other great nations have done in aiding the establishment of their merchant marines and it is timely to recall that we have them our commerce to aid in their rebuilding while the American task now is to uphold and establish in the face of their most active competition.

"OPPOSED BY WORLD"

I hope it is seemly to say it, because it must be said, the maritime nations of the world are in complete accord with the opposition here to the pending measure. They have a perfect right to such an attitude. But I wish to stress the American viewpoint. One should be the viewpoint from which one sees American carriers at sea, the dependence of American commerce and American vessels for American reliance in the event of war. Some of the costly lessons of war must be learned again and again, but our shipping lesson in the World War was much too costly to be effaced from the memory of this or future generations.

I think it loftier statesmanship to support and commend a policy designed to effect the larger good to the nation than merely to record the too hasty impression of a constituency. Out of the harmonized aspirations, the fully informed convictions, and the unit efforts of all the people will come the greater republic. Commercial eminence on the seas, ample agencies for the promotion and carrying of our foreign commerce are of no less importance to the people of Mississippi and the Missouri valleys, the great northwest and the Rocky Mountain states than to the seaboard states and industrial communities building inland a thousand miles or more. It is a common cause, with its benefits commonly shared.

But let us momentarily put aside the aspiring and inspiring viewpoint. The blunt, indisputable fact of the loss of fifty millions a year under government operation remains likewise the enormous war expenditure to which we were forced because we had not fittingly encouraged and builded as our commerce expanded in peace. Here are facts to deal with not fancies wrought of our political and economic disputes. The abolition of the annual action and the best salvage of the capital account are of concern to all the people.

It should be kept in mind that the approximate sum of five millions annually paid for transport of ocean mails is no new expenditure. It should be kept in mind that the loan fund to encourage building is not new; it is the law already enacted by the essentially unanimous vote of congress. It is only included in the pending bill in order to amend so as to assure the government of a minimum interest rate by the government whereas the existing law leaves the grant of building loans subject to any whim of favoritism.

It should be kept in mind also that there are assured limitations of the government proposal. The direct aid with ocean carrying maintained at our present participation will not reach twenty millions a year and the maximum direct aid, if our shipping is so promoted that we carry one half our foreign seas commerce, will not exceed thirty millions annually. At the very maximum of outlay we should be saving twenty millions of our present annual operating loss. If the maximum is ever reached the establishment of our merchant marine will have been definitely recorded and the government owned fleet fortunately liquidated.

I believe in government aid becoming indefinitely bestowal. We have aided industry through our tariffs; we have aided railway transportation in land grants and loans, we have aided the construction of roads and improvements of inland waterways. We have aided reclamation and irrigation and the development of water power; we have loaned for seed grains.

AID FOR FARMER

At the present time the American farmer is the chief sufferer from the cruel readjustments which follow war's inflation, and belittling government aid to our farmers is highly essential to our welfare.

Already this congress and the administrative branch of the government has given willing ear to the agricultural plea for postwar relief, and much has been done which has proven helpful. Admittedly it is not enough. Our credit systems, under government provision and control, must be promptly broadened to relieve our agricultural distress.

To this problem and such other of pressing importance as reasonably may be dealt with in short session I shall invite your attention at an early day.

I have chosen to confirm myself to the specific problem of dealing with our merchant marine because I have asked you to assemble two weeks in advance of the regularly appointed time to expedite its consideration. The executive branch of the government would feel itself remiss to contemplate our yearly loss and attending failure to accomplish if the conditions were not pressed for your decision. More, I would feel myself lacking in concern for America's future if I failed to stress the beckoning opportunity to equip the United States to assume a befitting place among the nations of the world whose commerce is inseparable from the good fortunes to which rightfully all peoples aspire.
